FURTHER SHOCKS FELT IN SICILY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rome, May 11.—With the death roll in the recent earthquake in Sicily now estimated at from 150 to 250 further shocks were felt today on the slopes of Mount Etna, causing intense alarm.

These tremors were particularly severe at Randazzo, a prosperous village, upon the mountainside. The people fled from their homes carrying their portable household effects with them.

Clouds of smoke and vapor are still issuing from the crater of the volcano giving rise to fears that an eruptions may follow. Deep rumbling noises, like distant thunder, can be heard in the middle of the smoking mountain and the scientists who are on the ground are advising the people to remain out of the danger zone.

Burial of bodies of victims of the earthquake began today, many of them being unidentified. This was particularly true in cases where whole families were wiped out. Temporary field hospitals have been set up for the care of the wounded of whom about six hundred have been gathered in.

The relief workers face a grave situation in a water famine. Watermains were broken by the force of the earthquake and wells and springs were polluted by the debris which fell into them.

Soldiers, Red Cross nurses, priests and volunteers are co-operating in the relief work.

They are clearing away the debris as rapidly as possible in the search for more bodies while food and clothing and tents are being distributed among the 10,000 homeless.

Throughout the night the work went on by torchlight, except upon the coast where searchlights from ships were turned inland.

At Lincera and other villages in the province of Catania, where the greatest force was felt, nothing remains but the bones of ruins. The force of the tremors were greater than the shocks which destroyed Messina in 1908. Survivors say that they were thrown to the ground and tossed about as though in a rocking boat.

General Moncagatte, who is in command of the troops in the quake zone, telegraphed to the government today, saying that strict precautions had been taken to prevent disease. Army surgeons, co-operating with the Red Cross, have adopted rigid sanitary measures.

Funds are pouring in for the relief of the homeless. King Victor Emmanuel heads the list with a personal donation of $20,000. The government had appropriated $10,000. About $1,000 has come from the Italian colony in New York.

Annual V. M. C. A. Election.

This evening the annual meeting of the senior members of the V. M. C. A. will be held to elect five directors to succeed A. D. Rose, Frank D. Matthews, Jay Terry, E. J. Walter and Frank R. Powley, whose terms of office expire, and to receive the reports of the year's work of the association. Following the business meeting the Rev. C. C. Marshall will deliver an illustrated lecture on "A Journey Through Scotland." At the close "Gus" Bonesteel will serve refreshments.

TO ADVERTISERS.

MR. MERCHANT, the public has been harassed too long. Its ears are ringing. Its eyes are weary with following wild gestures of inexperienced, amateur advertisers. Its intelligence has been insulted too often. Its credit stretched too far. Reader turn with relief to my low-priced, modern, non-exaggerated advertisements. Booklets, circulars, business letters, etc., because they appeal to reason. The public weighs words carefully, and the balance swings toward the more solid ones. Let me show you the "difference" in advertising. Terms reasonable. George M. Zellmer, care of Kingston Freeman.

ROSENDALE JOKERS FAKE A BLACK HAND

A joker joked might be a very appropriate title for the following little tale of Andrew Smith, the well known proprietor of a saloon with barber shop adjoining on Main street in Rosendale, who received a postal card on Friday morning reading:

"Meet me Saturday night at 10:30 at the creek crossing near King's Highway. Be there to your own advantage. Fall at your peril." The effect of the postal was such on Andrew that he hired an automobile on Saturday evening and sent it in to the sheriff's office with a request that Deputy Sheriff Harry McLaughlin come out to his assistance. Mr. McLaughlin went and thereby hangs a tale.

To go back to the beginning, Andrew had occasionally called to see a certain charming young lady who was also the recipient of attentions from an Italian fruit dealer in Kingston. Friday morning when Andrew received the postal card he jumped to the conclusion that his rival had sent it to him. To add to his terror a number of his friends during the day dropped in to ask him what the two Italians they had seen hanging around behind his shop were up to.

After his friends had left the store Andrew dug up the postal from his coat pocket and sitting down he silently contemplated it and the more he read it the more deeply he saw through the dark plot laid to lure him to the lonely creek crossing and kill him. Andrew has a very vivid imagination and the more he thought of the postal the more frightened he became. As Saturday afternoon was drawing to a close his fright became more pronounced and he was hardly able to swallow his supper. After supper he went to his business place and worked half heartedly, glancing at the large clock with furtive glances. Finally at nine o'clock he decided that something must be done, and he hired an automobile to bring out Harry McLaughlin.

In the meantime a number of Andrew's friends armed with revolvers gathered at Andrew's place and assured him that they would protect him from danger. The delegation was headed by Constable George Dockstadter and included Frank Huben and his brother, Deputy Sheriff Jacob Huben, and there was at least twenty men in the posse. All of them, however, were not aware that some one was putting up a joke on Andrew.

Some of the men drew Andrew to one side and urged him to lead the procession and walk to the meeting place and they would follow behind. "Not on your life," Andrew assured them fervently, "do you think I want to stop a bullet?"

Persuasion failing, Frank Budington, better known as "Doc," was cast for the star role.

Andrew, however, was forced to go along, for they assured him that he was needed to identify the sender of the postal.

The posse walked through the village street with Doc leading.

When the meeting place was reached "Doc" paused dramatically and placing one hand over his heart and the other in his hip pocket, he assumed a pose that he thought resembled that of Napoleon.

"By gosh, he will be shot sure," whispered Andrew to his companions who lay hidden in the bushes near the scene.

Nothing of the sort occurred, however, and "Doc" remained posed for sometime while his companions quietly snickered and some of them began to "smell a mouse."

At this juncture McLaughlin reached the scene and surmising that something was up and seeing that his services were not needed, he returned to Kingston.

The "posse" coming on the job for some time enjoying Andrew's evident terror and apprehension that something sure would happen, and it was long after midnight before the jokers becoming tired assured Andrew that the one who sent the postal had become frightened when he had seen from a safe distance that Andrew was brave enough to keep the appointment.

This thought comforted Andrew to such an extent that he agreed it was no use waiting any longer and the posse broke up and retired to their beds. Andrew, it is hoped, spent a somewhat better night.

Andrew it is said is noted as a practical joker himself.

At The Hospital.

Mrs. Seth Gear of Washington avenue was taken to the Kingston City Hospital for treatment.

George V. Conklin of the Strand Hotel was admitted to the Kingston City Hospital. He is suffering with a nervous breakdown but will be out in a few days.

The condition of Henry B. Ingram, who suffered a stroke of apoplexy several days ago and is at the Kingston City Hospital, is reported as being very critical.

Meeting Postponed.

The meeting of the athletic committee of the Kingston Sunday School Association to form a baseball league was not held on Saturday as expected and the meeting was postponed owing to the fact that the committee wish to secure some more information. The meeting will be held in the near future.

Bowling Tournament Plans.

Plans are under way at the Y. M. C. A. to start a big bowling tournament at the association and all of the members who have been constant bowlers at the gym are expected to take part. The tournament is held with the idea of creating more of an interest in bowling.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. HOWARD CHIPP

Lucy North Vary, wife of Howard Chipp, died unexpectedly at her home, No. 127 Fair street, at six o'clock Sunday evening after a brief illness, aged fifty years. Mrs. Chipp had a severe illness about a year and a half ago and never entirely regained her normal health. During the present year she was indisposed on several occasions, but her illness was not of a severe nature until Thursday, when she became seriously ill. Her illness was found to be the result of inflammation of the gall bladder, involving the appendix, and on Saturday an operation was performed at her home by Drs. Vrooman, Van Hoevenberg and Chandler. The operation was successful and Mrs. Chipp progressed favorably until Sunday afternoon, when she suffered an attack of cerebral hemorrhage, which resulted in her death.

Mrs. Chipp was a daughter of the late Dr. Egbert M. Vary, who for many years was one of the leading dentists of Ulster county, and was born in Rondout, January 10, 1864. Dr. Vary began practicing his profession at Rondout and afterwards practiced in Troy and Poughkeepsie, returning to Kingston during the late seventies. He died in 1900 and Mrs. Vary died in 1905.

During all of her life Mrs. Chipp was actively identified with the social, philanthropic and charitable work of Kingston, and there was no woman in the city who had a larger personal acquaintance. Her varied activities made her many acquaintances who remained her firm friends. Her reading was extensive and she was broad minded and liberal in her views. She was very practical in the application of modern methods to philanthropic and charitable problems and her judgment was highly regarded in every phase of public movement. She was devoted to her family and in her home life as well as in her public activities she enjoyed thoroughly whatever she was doing. She was one of the organizers of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Kingston City Hospital and remained a member until her death. She was deeply interested in the work of the hospital and aided materially in the work of raising funds for the support of the institution. She was one of the organizers of the Ulster County Club, in which she was one of the most active members; the Federation of Women's Clubs, and had been a delegate a number of times to the state conference of women's clubs. During the administration of Morris Block as mayor, she served as a member of the board of health, and was active in looking after the enforcement of public health laws in order to protect the public.

Her death, which came as such a great shock to her numerous friends, and she will be sincerely missed in the future social and philanthropic work of the city. Mrs. Chipp is survived by her husband, who has long been one of the leading members of the Ulster county bar; by two daughters, Misses Dorothy and Elmer Chipp, and by one sister, Mrs. Harriet V. Mulford. The funeral will take place from St. John's Church on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

ANOTHER GAME CANCELLED.

Middletown Sends Telegram That Members of the Team Are Crippled.

The K. A. Middletown game Saturday was canceled by the Middletown nine thus further depleting the K. A. schedule. The Middletown manager did not notify the home team until 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon and the K. A. boys felt as though they were being deceived.

The following is the Middletown manager's telegram:

Middletown, N. Y., May 9, 1914. 2 p. m.

Baseball Team Kingston Academy, A Jones, Manager:

Impossible to get team together members crippled. Particulars later. Sorry.

A Marblotown Lawsuit.

The case of Maggie Wynkoop against William Heinle was tried at Marblotown on Saturday afternoon before Justice Sidney Meyer and a jury. The issues involved the use of animals, with a counterclaim for feed. The parties are neighbors. Mr. Heinle living on the farm formerly owned by Lieut. Deits who used to drive to Kingston with a steer hitched to his buggy. Miss Wynkoop sued to recover $10 and the defendant counterclaimed with a cross claim of $9.60. The jury rendered a verdict of no cause of action. F. C. Merritt appeared for the plaintiff and the defendant was represented by Milton O. Auchmoody.

New Hotel at Lake Katrine.

This afternoon Walter C. Hudler, the contractor, began work on constructing a new hotel for John J. Cuneo at his popular Lake Katrine resort to take place of the one which was destroyed by fire. Recently Mr. Cuneo has built an ice house with a capacity of 7,500 tons. The new hotel will be 38 by 46 feet in dimensions and the dancing pavilion addition will be 38 by 38 feet. The contractor has put a large force of men as the work must be completed by Decoration Day.

"Perfection in Weavery"

DESCRIBES

Hardwick Wilton Rugs

accurately, for they combine every known feature of Wilton excellence together with certain entirely new principles that make possible the most exquisite patterns and the most delicate colorings yet with a remarkable durability.

The pile of Hardwick Wiltons is closer than any other Wilton made, and they will always lie flat and smooth, never wrinkling, creeping or curling at the edges.

The designs include faithful reproductions of the gems of the Orient, such as Saruks, Kermanshahs, Sennas and others. And the forty or more sizes make it possible to fit any room, no matter what its size or shape may be.

The prices of Hardwick Wilton Rugs are most reasonable, especially when the quality is considered.

It would give us great pleasure to show them to you.

MONOGRAMS LOSE TEN-INNING GAME

It was a delighted throng of 1,600 fans who saw the Red Monograms and the Knight Athletic Club of Saugerties fight for supremacy at McVey's field Sunday afternoon. Those who attended the contest saw one of the best ten-inning games ever pulled off on those grounds. The excited applause that greeted the players at frequent intervals bore evidence of the unusual enthusiasm of the fans. Umpire McLean was "on his job" and gave complete satisfaction.

The Saugerties nine came to Kingston with a battery that was far above the semi-professional class. Moore, on the firing line for the visitors, pitched professional ball. His delivery was extremely swift and deceptive. Williams and Westfall were the battery for the Monograms for five innings. In the sixth inning Spalt and Cragin were substituted.

In the fourth inning, Williams walked two men, a wild throw by Nolan to home and a passed ball by Westfall netted the Saugerties team two runs. The Monograms were in the lead until the ninth inning, the score standing 5 and 4. In this inning the visitors tied the score, 5 and 5, making the tenth inning necessary. In this inning the game was won by Saugerties, and lost to the Red Monograms by Spalt walking Whittaker, Brink and Murray and allowing Murphy to take his base for being hit by the ball. At this critical moment the excitement was intense. All eyes watched Spalt, usually reliable in a "pinch," but for some reason he "lost his head" and victory was wrested from the home team, ending in a score of 5 to 6 in favor of Saugerties.

Although Moore proved high "unhittable," the Monograms occasionally swatted the sphere with a vengeance. Notable among the hitters were Glasser with a two-bagger, Williams with a long bingle to left, Deegan with a three-bagger, Kuehn with several superb hits, McLean with a pretty bunt and a fine two-bagger, and Spalt with a long safe hit to left. A clever double play by Deegan and Glasser in the fifth inning was loudly applauded.

Although many of those present were disappointed in seeing the Monograms lose by such a narrow margin, they were richly rewarded for attending the exhibition by witnessing a game worth coming a long distance to enjoy. If both these teams play a return game in the near future, the event will draw a record crowd.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

9922-9920.—A Neat Combination

For Business, Home or Shopping.

Separate waists and skirts are again popular. The designs here shown will lend themselves effectively to any of the materials now in vogue. The skirt is practical and easy to develop, and the waist will look well in tailored style, with long sleeve and revers finish, or in more dressy mode depicted on the figure view with short sleeve and gathered fronts. Lawn, linen, chambray, gingham, madras or tub silk, also batiste and net are good for the waist, while poplin, serge, voile, taffeta, linen or linen broadcloth or gingham could be used for the skirt. The waist pattern 9922 is cut in 5 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. It requires 2 1/4 yards of 36 inch material for a 36 inch size. The skirt pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. It requires 4 1/4 yards of 24 inch material for a 24 inch size. The skirt measures about 1 1/4 yard at the lower edge.

This illustration calls for two separate patterns which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10c for each pattern in silver or stamps by The Freeman Pattern Department. Be sure to state size wanted.

Eccentric Inn Names.

We are losing most of our eccentric inn names, but in Germany they are adding to them. Berlin now boasts the "Comfortable Chicken," "Cold Frog," "Stiff Dog," "Thirsty Pelican," "Dirty Parlor," "Musical Cats," "Boxers' Den," and "Lame Louse." Leipzig has "The Old Straw Bag," "Stadttoen an 'Open Bungalow,' and the vicinity of many a cemetery in the Fatherland is graced by a "Last Tear."—London Chron.

accurately, for they combine every known feature of Wilton excellence together with certain entirely new principles that make possible the most exquisite patterns and the most delicate colorings yet with a remarkable durability.

The pile of Hardwick Wiltons is closer than any other Wilton made, and they will always lie flat and smooth, never wrinkling, creeping or curling at the edges.

The designs include faithful reproductions of the gems of the Orient, such as Saruks, Kermanshahs, Sennas and others. And the forty or more sizes make it possible to fit any room, no matter what its size or shape may be.

The prices of Hardwick Wilton Rugs are most reasonable, especially when the quality is considered.

It would give us great pleasure to show them to you.

MONOGRAMS LOSE TEN-INNING GAME

It was a delighted throng of 1,600 fans who saw the Red Monograms and the Knight Athletic Club of Saugerties fight for supremacy at McVey's field Sunday afternoon. Those who attended the contest saw one of the best ten-inning games ever pulled off on those grounds. The excited applause that greeted the players at frequent intervals bore evidence of the unusual enthusiasm of the fans. Umpire McLean was "on his job" and gave complete satisfaction.

The Saugerties nine came to Kingston with a battery that was far above the semi-professional class. Moore, on the firing line for the visitors, pitched professional ball. His delivery was extremely swift and deceptive.

Williams and Westfall were the battery for the Monograms for five innings. In the sixth inning Spalt and Cragin were substituted.

In the fourth inning, Williams walked two men, a wild throw by Nolan to home and a passed ball by Westfall netted the Saugerties team two runs. The Monograms were in the lead until the ninth inning, the score standing 5 and 4. In this inning the visitors tied the score, 5 and 5, making the tenth inning necessary. In this inning the game was won by Saugerties, and lost to the Red Monograms by Spalt walking Whitaker, Brink and Murray and allowing Murphy to take his base for being hit by the ball. At this critical moment the excitement was intense. All eyes watched Spalt, usually reliable in a "pinch," but for some reason he "lost his head" and victory was wrested from the home team, ending in a score of 5 to 6 in favor of Saugerties.

Although Moore proved high "unhittable," the Monograms occasionally swatted the sphere with a vengeance. Notable among the hitters were Glasser with a two-bagger, Williams with a long bingle to left, Deegan with a three-bagger, Kuehn with several superb hits, McLean with a pretty bunt and a fine two-bagger, and Spalt with a long safe hit to left. A clever double play by Deegan and Glasser in the fifth inning was loudly applauded.

Although many of those present were disappointed in seeing the Monograms lose by such a narrow margin, they were richly rewarded for attending the exhibition by witnessing a game worth coming a long distance to enjoy. If both these teams play a return game in the near future, the event will draw a record crowd.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

9922-9920.—A Neat Combination For Business, Home or Shopping.

Separate waists and skirts are again popular. The designs here shown will lend themselves effectively to any of the materials now in vogue. The skirt is practical and easy to develop, and the waist will look well in tailored style, with long sleeve and revers finish, or in more dressy mode depicted on the figure view with short sleeve and gathered fronts. Lawn, linen, chambray, gingham, madras or tub silk, also batiste and net are good for the waist, while poplin, serge, volles, taffeta, linen or linen broadcloth or gingham could be used for the skirt. The waist pattern 9922 is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. It requires 2 1/4 yards of 36 inch material for a 36 inch size. The skirt pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. It requires 4 1/4 yards of 24 inch material for a 24 inch size. The skirt measures about 1 1/4 yard at the lower edge.

This illustration calls for two separate patterns which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10c for each pattern in silver or stamps by The Freeman Pattern Department. Be sure to state size wanted.

IMPOSING FUNERAL OF VERA CRUZ DEAD

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, May 11.—Nation, state and city united today in a tribute of reverence to the American sailors and marines who gave their lives for their country in the fighting at Vera Cruz. While church bells tolled a requiem, President Woodrow Wilson, Governor Martin H. Glynn and Mayor John Purroy Mitchel led a demonstration of patriotic mourning without parallel since the days of 1898.

Seventeen flag draped coffins containing the bodies of those first to die fighting for the stars and stripes in the present Mexican trouble, were brought in solemn state aboard a U. S. cruiser to this port and today their grateful countrymen from the chief executive down to the humblest citizen did homage to their memory.

Early today the seamen of the cruiser Montana silently lowered the coffins, one by one over the ship's side to tugs on which they were brought ashore to be placed on gun caissons for the military funeral.

Battery Park was black with a crowd aggregating many thousands long before the hour set for the opening ceremonies. The day was warm and the hot sun shining through a thin mist gave an uncomfortable touch of humidity.

As the caissons, each covered with a great starry flag, were placed on Pier A, the men, women and children packed closely behind the police lines watched silently and reverently with bared heads.

All of the bodies had been transferred to the pier before Secretary of the Navy Daniels with his staff, left the yacht Mayflower which escorted the funeral ship from the Virginia Capes to the port of New York. The landing of Secretary Daniels was the signal for the opening of the ceremonies.

President Wilson, accompanied by his private secretary, Joseph Tumulty, and Dr. Cary T. Grayson, arrived over the Pennsylvania railroad from Washington at 7:13 o'clock. An automobile met the presidential party at the Pennsylvania station and Mr. Wilson was taken to the home of his friend, Col. E. M. House, for breakfast.

It was then announced that Mr. Wilson had changed his plans for the day. Instead of going direct to the Brooklyn Navy Yard, as he originally intended, he said he would review the funeral cortege from one of the stands in front of City Hall, going to the navy yard afterward to deliver his funeral oration.

With a precision born of long practice, the sailors and marines of the battleship Texas, who were assigned to escort the bodies to the Brooklyn navy yard, formed into line of march at Pier A, beginning at 8:30. Half an hour was allotted to the officers in getting the lines formed. Following the sailors were the members of the various military and civic organizations who took part in the procession.

Headed by twenty-four mounted policemen, the cortege then moved between a solid line of faces, flanking Broadway on both sides, toward City Hall. The make-up of the cortege was as follows:

Mounted police, combined bands from the battleships Wyoming and Texas, battalion of bluejackets from the Wyoming, battalion of bluejackets from the Texas, naval militia band, battalion from the naval militia, caissons, with bodies flanked by riders and National Guardsmen, caisson containing distinguished representatives of the United States government, the navy, the army and New York state and city, a detachment of mounted police.

There have been large and great parades in New York. Had it been desired there might have been one of the greatest civic and military turn-outs the city ever saw; but the idea of every one from the president of the United States down, was to have the cortege and everything connected with the memorial as compact and as simple as possible. This made it more impressive.

Throughout the city all flags were at half mast. In addition to the enormous crowd which thronged Broadway, Park Row and Wall street around City Hall, there were 300 Spanish war veterans, 200 members of the civic committee, 800 school children and several hundred delegates from patriotic organizations. As the funeral procession drew near the children sang "Nearer My God to Thee."

After delivering his funeral oration, Mayor Mitchel placed a wreath upon one of the caissons, this being symbolic of New York city's universal tribute of honor and sorrow.

From city hall the route of the procession was through Center and Canal streets and across Manhattan bridge to the Brooklyn navy yard where accommodations were arranged for 100,000 spectators. Simplicity was again the keynote for the services at the navy yard, the program being:

Hymn by the marine bands of the battleships stationed at the yard; Invocation by Chaplain William G. Cassard of Annapolis; funeral oration by the Rev. Father John P. Childwick, chaplain of the battleship Maine when she was blown up in Havana harbor.

The salute of 21 guns for President Wilson upon his arrival at the navy yard involved an interesting touch of personal sentiment. Secretary of the Navy explained it by saying:

"The president told me and asked me to have his idea made known to those firing the salute that he wished them to think that the 21 guns were not in his honor, but in honor of the boys who gave up their lives for their country."

A detachment of mounted police and several members of the motor cycle police squad were assigned to escort President Wilson as well as a squad of secret service agents in motor-cars.

Preparations were made for the immediate shipment of the bodies after "taps" had been sounded at the navy yard this afternoon. The remains of Walter L. Watson, Rufus

E. Percy and Daniel A. Haggerty, all New England men, will be carried to Boston on the Montana.

The names of the other dead are Louis F. Boswell, Gabriel A. De Fabbio, Francis P. De Lowery, Frank Devorick, E. C. Fisher, Louis O. Fried, E. H. Frohlichstein, Dennis Lane, Samuel Marten, George McK. Poinsett, John F. Schumacker, Charles Allen Smith, A. E. Stream and Randolph Summerlin.

There were affecting scenes when relatives received the bodies of their dead, three of the victims being residents of this city. They were Lane, Schumacker and Stream. Relatives were allowed to board the Montana before the bodies were taken from the cruiser and when the features of the dead sailors and marines were displayed through the glass tops of the coffins, the relatives of the slain warriors burst into uncontrollable weeping.

In speaking of the ceremonies, Secretary Daniels said:

"We have come to pay our last respects to the men who lost their lives at Vera Cruz and to express our appreciation of the spirit in New York manifest in the arrangements for the ceremonies here. Unfortunately Secretary of War Garrison could not come."

RECORDS MADE AT JUNIOR TRACK MEET

Some fine records were set up by the youngsters in the concluding junior track meet of the season held at the Y. M. C. A. on Saturday morning. The three highest point winners will be awarded gold, silver and bronze medals respectively. The three highest point winners of Student B classes were Leonard Woodrow with 21 points; John Sparling with 14 points and George Bilyou with 13 points. Henry Huestis won honorable mention by scoring 11 points. In Student C classes Kenneth Carson scored 29 points, Albert Terwilliger 23 points and George Meeder 19 points.

The summary of Student B events: 440 yard run—First, George Bilyou, 76 seconds; second, Leonard Woodrow, 76½ seconds; third, Abram Sutton, 76 3-5 seconds.

220 yard dash—First, George Bilyou, 34 3-5 seconds; second, Leonard Woodrow, 35 seconds; third, Charles Beeres, 35 1-5 seconds. In this event the three tied for first place and it had to be run off with the results of the second trial as noted.

An authority on the subject of sleep and its recreative powers makes the following suggestion and claim: "Cut short the long, light sleep of the morning hours and substitute a short sleep at some favorable time during the workday. Fifteen minutes' sleep after the heaviest work and the main meal of the day will count more for efficiency than five times 15 minutes of sleep in the morning."

Exquisite Dresses

The beautiful white and colored Dresses we are showing were selected after a most careful examination of many models. It was an unhurried examination, too. We looked for faults in fabric and design and found enough to reject all but the very attractive Summer Dresses that we now offer women and misses who seek perfection in this important item of apparel. Here are White Dresses for the June bride as well as the girl graduate. The designs are, without question, the prettiest we know of, and the materials are such a striking advance over any heretofore shown that a comparison of their beauty is futile. You will be fascinated with the garments we show at

IMPOSING FUNERAL OF VERA CRUZ DEAD

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, May 11.—Nation, state and city united today in a tribute of reverence to the American sailors and marines who gave their lives for their country in the fighting at Vera Cruz. While church bells tolled a requiem, President Woodrow Wilson, Governor Martin H. Glynn and Mayor John Purroy Mitchel led a demonstration of patriotic mourning without parallel since the days of 1898.

Seventeen flag draped coffins containing the bodies of those first to die fighting for the stars and stripes in the present Mexican trouble, were brought in solemn state aboard a U. S. cruiser to this port and today their grateful countrymen from the chief executive down to the humblest citizen did homage to their memory.

Early today the seamen of the cruiser Montana silently lowered the coffins, one by one over the ship's side to tugs on which they were brought ashore to be placed on gun caissons for the military funeral.

Battery Park was black with a crowd aggregating many thousands long before the hour set for the opening ceremonies. The day was warm and the hot sun shining through a thin mist gave an uncomfortable touch of humidity.

As the caissons, each covered with a great starry flag, were placed on Pier A, the men, women and children packed closely behind the police lines watched silently and reverently with bared heads.

All of the bodies had been transferred to the pier before Secretary of the Navy Daniels with his staff, left the yacht Mayflower which escorted the funeral ship from the Virginia Capes to the port of New York. The landing of Secretary Daniels was the signal for the opening of the ceremonies.

President Wilson, accompanied by his private secretary, Joseph Tumulty, and Dr. Cary T. Grayson, arrived over the Pennsylvania railroad from Washington at 7:15 o'clock. An automobile met the presidential party at the Pennsylvania station and Mr. Wilson was taken to the home of his friend, Col. E. M. House, for breakfast.

It was then announced that Mr. Wilson had changed his plans for the day. Instead of going direct to the Brooklyn Navy Yard, as he originally intended, he said he would review the funeral cortege from one of the stands in front of City Hall, going to the navy yard afterward to deliver his funeral oration.

With a precision born of long practice, the sailors and marines of the battleship Texas, who were assigned to escort the bodies to the Brooklyn navy yard, formed into line of march at Pier A, beginning at 8:30. Half an hour was allotted to the officers in getting the lines formed. Following the sailors were the members of the various military and civic organizations who took part in the procession.

Headed by twenty-four mounted policemen, the cortege then moved between a solid line of faces, flanking Broadway on both sides, toward City Hall. The make-up of the cortege was as follows:

Mounted police, combined bands from the battleships Wyoming and Texas, battalion of bluejackets from the Wyoming, battalion of bluejackets from the Texas, naval militia band, battalion from the naval militia, caissons, with bodies flanked by riders and National Guardsmen, carriage, containing distinguished representatives of the United States government, the navy, the army and New York state and city, a detachment of mounted police.

There have been large and great parades in New York. Had it been desired there might have been one of the greatest civic and military turnouts the city ever saw; but the idea of every one from the president of the United States down, was to have the cortege and everything connected with the memorial as compact and as simple as possible. This made it more impressive.

Throughout the city all flags were at half mast. In addition to the enormous crowd which thronged Broadway, Park Row and Wall street around City Hall, there were 300 Spanish war veterans, 200 members of the civic committee, 800 school children and several hundred delegates from patriotic organizations. As the funeral procession drew near the children sang "Nearer My God to Thee."

After delivering his funeral oration, Mayor Mitchel placed a wreath upon one of the caissons, this being symbolic of New York city's universal tribute of honor and sorrow.

From city hall the route of the procession was through Center and Canal streets and across Manhattan bridge to the Brooklyn navy yard where accommodations were arranged for 100,000 spectators. Simplicity was again the keynote for the services at the navy yard, the program being:

Hymn by the marine bands of the battleships stationed at the yard; Invocation by Chaplain William G. Cassard of Annapolis; funeral oration by the Rev. Father John P. Chidwick, chaplain of the battleship Maine when she was blown up in Havana harbor.

The salute of 21 guns for President Wilson upon his arrival at the navy yard involved an interesting touch of personal sentiment. Secretary of the Navy explained it by saying:

"The president told me and asked me to have his idea made known to those firing the salute that he wished them to think that the 21 guns were not in his honor, but in honor of the boys who gave up their lives for their country."

A detachment of mounted police and several members of the motor cycle police squad were assigned to escort President Wilson as well as a squad of secret service agents in motor-cars.

Preparations were made for the immediate shipment of the bodies after "taps" had been sounded at the navy yard this afternoon. The remains of Walter L. Watson, Rufus

E. Percy and Daniel A. Haggerty, all New England men, will be carried to Boston on the Montana.

The names of the other dead are Louis F. Boswell, Gabriel A. De Fabbio, Francis P. De Lowery, Frank Devorick, E. C. Fisher, Louis O. Fried, E. H. Frohlichstein, Dennis Lane, Samuel Marton, George McK. Polinsett, John F. Schumacker, Charles Allen Smith, A. E. Stream and Randolph Summerlin.

There were affecting scenes when relatives received the bodies of their dead, three of the victims being residents of this city. They were Lane, Schumacker and Stream. Relatives were allowed to board the Montana before the bodies were taken from the cruiser and when the features of the dead sailors and marines were displayed through the glass tops of the coffins, the relatives of the slain warriors burst into uncontrollable weeping.

In speaking of the ceremonies, Secretary Daniels said:

"We have come to pay our last respects to the men who lost their lives at Vera Cruz and to express our appreciation of the spirit in New York manifest in the arrangements for the ceremonies here. Unfortunately Secretary of War Garrison could not come."

RECORDS MADE AT JUNIOR TRACK MEET

Some fine records were set up by the youngsters in the concluding junior track meet of the season held at the Y. M. C. A. on Saturday morning. The three highest point winners will be awarded gold, silver and bronze medals respectively. The three highest point winners of Student B classes were Leonard Woodrow with 21 points; John Sparling with 14 points and George Bilyou with 13 points. Henry Huestis won honorable mention by scoring 11 points. In Student C classes Kenneth Carson scored 29 points, Albert Terwilliger 23 points and George Meeder 19 points.

The summary of Student B events: 440 yard run—First, George Bilyou, 76 seconds; second, Leonard Woodrow, 76 1/2 seconds; third, Abram Sutton, 78 3/5 seconds.

220 yard dash—First, George Bilyou, 34 3/5 seconds; second, Leonard Woodrow, 35 seconds; third, Charles Beeres, 35 1/5 seconds. In this event the three tied for first place and it had to be run off with the results of the second trial as noted.

100 yard dash—First, John Sparling, 14 4/5 seconds; second, George Bilyou, 15 seconds; third, Charles Beeres, 15 1/5 seconds.

20 yard dash—First, Leonard Woodrow, 3 1/5 seconds; second, Charles Beeres, 3 3/5 seconds; third, John Sparling, 3 4/5 seconds.

50 yard dash—First, Leonard Woodrow, 4 feet 8 inches; second, Ray Van Buren, 4 feet 7 inches; third, Henry Huestis, 4 feet 5 inches.

Snap under bar for height—First, John Sparling, 4 feet 6 inches; second, Franklin Hyatt, 4 feet 3 inches; third, Henry Huestis, 4 feet 4 inches.

Running broad jump—First, Ray Van Buren, 13 feet 5 1/4 inches; second, John Sparling, 12 feet 1 inch; third, Abram Sutton, 11 feet 10 1/4 inches.

Running high jump—First, Henry Huestis, 5 feet 8 inches; second, Franklin Hyatt, 4 feet 7 inches; third, Abram Sutton, 4 feet 7 inches.

40 yard swim—First, Abram Sutton, 7 2/5 seconds; second, John Sparling, 8 4/5 seconds; third, Henry Huestis, 9 seconds.

Student C Records. The summary of Student C events: 440 yard run—First, Kenneth Carson, 77 2/5 seconds; second, George Meeder, 81 3/5 seconds; third, Albert Terwilliger, 84 2/5 seconds.

220 yard dash—First, Kenneth Carson, 35 4/5 seconds; second, George Meeder, 36 4/5 seconds; third, Albert Terwilliger, 37 3/5 seconds.

100 yard dash—First, Kenneth Carson, 15 2/5 seconds; second, George Meeder, 16 seconds; third, Albert Terwilliger, 16 3/5 seconds.

20 yard dash—First, Albert Terwilliger, 3 3/5 seconds; second, George Meeder, 3 4/5 seconds; third, Kenneth Carson, 3 4/5 seconds.

In this event Meeder and Carson tied for second place and in the run off Meeder won out.

50 yard dash—First, George Meeder, 3 feet 7 inches; second, Albert Terwilliger, 3 feet 6 inches; third, Kenneth Evory, 3 feet.

Snap under bar for height—First, Albert Terwilliger, 4 feet 2 inches; second, Kenneth Carson, 4 feet 1 inch; third, George Meeder, 3 feet 7 inches.

Running broad jump—First, Kenneth Carson, 11 feet 2 1/4 inches; second, Albert Terwilliger, 10 feet 9 inches; third, George Meeder, 9 feet 9 inches.

Running high jump—First, Albert Terwilliger, 4 feet 1 inch; second, Kenneth Carson, 3 feet 8 inches; third, Kenneth Evory, 3 feet 6 inches.

40 yard swim—First, Kenneth Carson, 13 3/5 seconds; second, Albert Terwilliger, 15 seconds. These were the only two entries in this event.

Kenneth Carson proved the star of Student C, winning five firsts. Terwilliger, who won second highest number of points, managed to secure a place in every event run off.

Senior Meet Tuesday Evening.

The concluding senior meet will be held on Tuesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. There are about a dozen entries and some fast work is expected. Admission free.

An authority on the subject of sleep and its recreative powers makes the following suggestion and claim: "Cut short the long, light sleep of the morning hours and substitute a short sleep at some favorable time during the workday. Fifteen minutes' sleep after the heaviest work and the main meal of the day will count more for efficiency than five times 15 minutes of sleep in the morning."

KINGSTON, N. Y., MAY 11, 1914.

The consolidation of the Chicago Inter Ocean and the Chicago Record-Herald is one of the signs of the times. Those of us who are of mature years can remember when newspapers with hyphenated names were almost unknown, while they are now almost as common as the periodicals with single names. Few new papers are being started, and when they are started they do not last long, as a rule, while consolidations are heard of every day. Thus far in Ulster County there has been but one important newspaper consolidation—that of the Weekly Freeman and the Weekly Journal many years ago. That was of great advantage to the owners and to the community in general. Every consolidation is a god-send to business men. They have to pay fewer advertising bills and yet reach just as many people. In fact, in many cities throughout the country there are merchants' associations which have standing resolutions refusing to give patronage to any one who starts a new paper and advising those with editorial ambitions to purchase existing papers.

If it is really true that the hospitals for the insane in this state are feeding their 33,000 inmates with rotten food no punishment is too bad for the men in charge. There can be no disagreement on that point. The only doubt is regarding the truth of the charges. It is a suspicious circumstance that the "revelation" should be made by John H. Delaney's department of efficiency and economy, which has been in existence for over a year without accomplishing anything except the waste of public money in paying salaries to political parasites. It is curious that this sudden excitement should be coincident with the refusal of the Assembly to appropriate money to keep the department going. With twenty-six different bureaus and societies inspecting these institutions all the while, it is incredible that the conditions reported by Delaney can exist. The activity of these various inspectors and supervisors is very intense, as managers of our local institutions well know. Delaney is probably experiencing a kind of political death-bed repentance.

Many people have been wondering why Charles F. Murphy is so anxious to have a constitutional convention. It is no ordinary reason which causes a political boss to order his henchmen to vote dead men and stuff ballot boxes. The key to the puzzle may be found in Section 4 of Article 3 of the present constitution, which provides that "no county shall have more than one-third of all the senators; and no two counties or the territory thereof as now organized, which are adjoining counties, or which are separated only by public waters, shall have more than one-half of all the senators." If this provision can be eliminated from the new constitution it is easy to see that a majority of senators will come from districts controlled by Tammany. No matter if the people elect a Republican assembly and a Republican governor, the Murphy senate will be able to balk their efforts just as it is doing now with those of the Republican assembly. Governor Glynn's suggestion that delegates to the constitutional convention be chosen on non-partisan lines was probably more crafty than it appeared at first thought. There will be no non-partisanship in the Tammany strongholds, you may be sure, and the rest of the State will have to keep its eyes wide open to avoid being buncoed.

Emperor William, as head of the Lutheran Church in Germany, has ordered the insertion in the liturgy of a special prayer for military and naval aircraft. This appears to be an incident of the modern movement to "bring religion up to date." In this country we have not heard of amendments to liturgies, but we have a group of revivalists of the "Rev." Billy Sunday stripe who are trying a different way to carry out the same general purpose. Sunday's idea is that he can bring religious truths home to the masses by talking about God putting the Devil out on first base, etc. Formerly, such expressions would have landed their author in the stocks, if nothing worse, but we have advanced a long way from that period. In fact, a devout clergyman well known to our readers recently had a letter in The Freeman in which he commended Sunday's methods. Mindful of the maxim, "By their fruits you shall know them," we refrain from absolutely condemning any style of discourse or action which improves the conduct of men, but, like many of our readers, we are old-fashioned enough to wish that the same results might be achieved more decorously. One of the great charms of religious services is that they are not up to date in the ordinary meaning of the phrase. Somehow, talk of aircraft and baseball seems inappropriate in a church.

"SOMETHING NEW."

The great Jean Worth—great in the world of fashions—earnestly deplores woman's craze for "something new." Prefacing his remarks with the statement that, commercially speaking, he ought not to say one little word against the plague, but that artistically he is bound to, he pathetically says that women care not a fig whether a fashion or a color is intrinsically beautiful or ugly, if only it is new.

All the pretty colors are old, he declares, old as the hills themselves, but to meet the insatiable greed for newness, new shades—sometimes amazingly ugly ones—must be invented to please them; and modes must be changed with the changing weeks, days, even hours for some extremists with an abundance of wealth at command. And he assures the clamoring meesdames that "it is a disease, this mania for change."

If they would but turn back to the sweet reasonableness in dress that inspired their grandmothers and great-grandmothers it would be vastly better for themselves and for the beauty of the world. But no; simplicity is a forgotten word, and they must have as many gowns in their wardrobe as their husbands' finances will permit, all fantastically elaborate and a meaningless mixture of materials. It positively makes the great artist shudder, and he marvels that women fuss so greatly about their clothes and follow the fast-changing styles so meekly and implicitly that their own individuality is sunk out of sight, buried in the tuneless fashions they affect.

With tears in his eyes, or, at least, in his words, he begs women to "be not fashion's slaves," and assures them that if they will only take that lesson to heart and be laws unto themselves, recognizing their individual requirements, then they and their gowns will be in soft harmony and they will have the distinction of being supremely well dressed. For, with tact and good taste standing guard, "it need make no difference that the purse is limited."

And won't meesdames listen when the oracle speaks?

Evidently he has no fear of Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman and a few other aggressive women who are trying to stir up a mild dress-war upon "the ingenious gentlemen in Paris who tell us what to wear!" But, after all, they are not so far apart, for Mrs. Gilman is as emphatic as is the Paris dressmaker himself in demanding the blind following of fashion's latest decree. She, too, pleads for "the right of any woman to dress as she pleases"—a right, by the way, that must be self-granted, more or less. As things run now, she declares, "if we dare to have an opinion of our own, young misses call us crazy." But she earnestly urges that it is time for women to develop a normal pride in humanity instead of an artificial pride in good looks and pretty clothes.

Verily, verily, verily, as one walks abroad these late spring days, and as one has walked abroad for many a season before, it is to wonder what ever becomes of the gowns, the hats, the everything of last season's making. For once a new fashion fully springs upon us, it seems as if the old fades away, literally overnight. Indeed, who but the hopelessly out of date daries fare forth without the proper fullness in the proper place and without the duly measured inches—yards no longer—at the feet? And who ventures out with a great big, flaring hat in these little perky days?

But the question is: What becomes of the old? For "the Colonel's lady" an' Judy O'Grady" are both modishly gowned. It really takes a pretty penny or so to change with the changing styles, but last season's fine raiment must be reposing on some sort of scrap-heap, for it is never seen on the streets today, at least only once or twice in an unstylish while.

And where does it go, and who pays the bills?

Yes, we women are pretty foolish when it comes to matters of dress, but the weakness has been partly thrust upon us. And beside, commercialism stands back of the changing styles. Dressmakers, milliners, manufacturers find the mania "financially splendid," as the renowned Paris authority puts it, but it is hard on women, who, for all of their meekness, secretly rebel at the preposterous speed with which the perfectly good gown is out-fashioned, it hasn't a chance to wear out; it is just forced "out of style," and that means dead to the world.

Of course, if women openly and unitedly rebelled and demanded that a style be permitted to run a sane and natural course, covering the normal life of a normal gown, we might have a chance to draw a comfortable breath and to recover from one dress-expenditure before it was time for the next.

But what about the mills where fabrics are made and what of the headquarters where styles are evolved? For milady's dress and milady's fine feathers are not unto herself alone—there's a fine little line reaching out to the great commercial world. But they do say that manufacturers nearly lose their heads sometimes through the rapidity with which styles are changed and the very uncertainty of their ventures. For women have been known to reject some of the atrocities put upon them, and then there's a fine loss for somebody.

Stung Again.

John L. McNab, United States District Attorney, tells an amusing story of a politician who came from the country to a Western city for a day's stay. He went to one of the popular hotels and registered, but was invited out to dine at the home of a friend. When his bill was presented to him, he found the charge was for a day's board, including dinner. He protested vigorously. The genial clerk explained to him that the American plan was based strictly on time, and that the fact that he had chosen to dine elsewhere had no effect upon the charge. He paid the bill, very much dissatisfied. Then, finding that meals were still being served, he hurried into one of the dining rooms, hastily seized a menu card, and ordered a very sumptuous repast, in an effort to "get even." Finally he finished, and the waiter handed him a check for nine dollars. "What is this for?" he demanded. "Your dinner, sir," replied the waiter.

"Dinner!" he exclaimed, indignantly. "I have already paid for my dinner in my bill. I am staying here on the American plan!"

"Then sir," said the waiter, quietly, "you should have gone into the other dining-room. This is the European-plan cafe."—Hearst's Magazine.

Some Scope.

Dr. Charles B. Colmore, the new Bishop of Porto Rico, said of divorce in American:

"Oh, ours is not the only country with a rampant divorce spirit. I was talking one day to a Romanian priest, and he said that the Greek Church allowed only three divorces. 'Only,' mind—those were his very words! Only."

"He said he married a couple once, and the bride having already been divorced twice, he said to her in a whisper at the altar:

"You better be careful this time. Remember, by the law of the church, this is your last chance. This time it's for keeps."

"Oh, no," said the bride, with a toss of the head. "Oh, no. My first husband was my cousin, so that marriage was illegal, and consequently I have still some scope."

A New Type.

Lewis Cass Ledyard was talking in New York about a muckraker of a new type. "I've never heard any good of him," he said. "Even when I've thought I heard a word in his favor, it has always proved the opposite when traced to its source. 'It's like the case of the office boy whose master said: 'Willie is slow and sure.' 'Slow and sure, eh?' 'Yes, slow to learn, sure to forget.'—New York Tribune.

Forrester of Yonkers. Is this the Apollo Belvedere?

"Yes, madam," replied the other. "Considered a pretty fine statue." "Finest in the world, madam." "Well," said Mrs. Forrester, pursing her lips. "I've seen the Apollo Belvedere, and I've seen Maximilian Forrester. And give me Forrester!"—New York World.

Mother's Day at Trinity.

Fully seven hundred and fifty people attended the services at Trinity Methodist Church yesterday. The morning service in honor of Mother's Day far surpassed any of that nature in many years. Each person was given a white carnation as they entered the church and this brought to their attention in a direct and interesting manner the nature of the service. The pastor, the Rev. C. C. Marshall, took for his subject: "Honor Thy Mothers." He related the facts concerning the origin of "Mother's Day," referred to the sacrifice made and the service rendered by the mothers and paid a high tribute to motherhood. Many expressions of appreciation of the sermon and the helpful nature of the service as a whole were heard from the large and appreciative congregation. At the evening service the pastor lectured on "Girolamo Savonarola, the Reformer of Italy." The lecture was illustrated by the use of the stereopticon and proved to be one of the most instructive and interesting of the course. This series of lectures is drawing large congregations. The hymns were illustrated and Mr. Beckwith sang very acceptably an illustrated solo.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MAY 11, 1914.

The consolidation of the Chicago Inter Ocean and the Chicago Record-Herald is one of the signs of the times. Those of us who are of mature years can remember when newspapers with hyphenated names were almost unknown, while they are now almost as common as the periodicals with single names. Few new papers are being started, and when they are started they do not last long, as a rule, while consolidations are heard of every day. Thus far in Ulster County there has been but one important newspaper consolidation—that of the Weekly Freeman and the Weekly Journal many years ago. That was of great advantage to the owners and to the community in general. Every consolidation is a godsend to business men. They have to pay fewer advertising bills and yet reach just as many people. In fact, in many cities throughout the country there are merchants' associations which have standing resolutions refusing to give patronage to any one who starts a new paper and advising those with editorial ambitions to purchase existing papers.

If it is really true that the hospitals for the insane in this state are feeding their 33,000 inmates with rotten food no punishment is too bad for the men in charge. There can be no disagreement on that point. The only doubt is regarding the truth of the charges. It is a suspicious circumstance that the "revelation" should be made by John H. Delaney, the department of efficiency and economy, which has been in existence for over a year without accomplishing anything except the waste of public money in paying salaries to political parasites. It is curious that this sudden excitement should be coincident with the refusal of the Assembly to appropriate money to keep the department going. With twenty-six different bureaus and societies inspecting these institutions all the while, it is incredible that the conditions reported by Delaney can exist. The activity of these various inspectors and supervisors is very intense, as managers of our local institutions well know. Delaney is probably experiencing a kind of political death-bed repentance.

Many people have been wondering why Charles F. Murphy is so anxious to have a constitutional convention. It is no ordinary reason which causes a political boss to order his henchmen to vote dead men and stuff ballot boxes. The key to the puzzle may be found in Section 4 of Article 3 of the present constitution, which provides that "no county shall have more than one-third of all the senators; and no two counties or the territory thereof as now organized, which are adjoining counties, or which are separated only by public waters, shall have more than one-half of all the senators." If this provision can be eliminated from the new constitution it is easy to see that a majority of senators will come from districts controlled by Tammany. No matter if the people elect a Republican assembly and a Republican governor, the Murphy senate will be able to balk their efforts just as it is doing now with those of the Republican assembly. Governor Glynn's suggestion that delegates to the constitutional convention be chosen on non-partisan lines was probably more crafty than it appeared at first thought. There will be no non-partisanship in the Tammany strongholds, you may be sure, and the rest of the State will have to keep its eyes wide open to avoid being buncoed.

Emperor William, as head of the Lutheran Church in Germany, has ordered the insertion in the liturgy of a special prayer for military and naval aircraft. This appears to be an incident of the modern movement to "bring religion up to date." In this country we have not heard of amendments to liturgies, but we have a group of revivalists of the "Rev." Billy Sunday stripe who are trying a different way to carry out the same general purpose. Sunday's idea is that he can bring religious truths home to the masses by talking about God putting the Devil out on first base, etc. Formerly, such expressions would have landed their author in the stocks, if nothing worse, but we have advanced a long way from that period. In fact, a devout clergyman well known to our readers recently had a letter in The Freeman

In which he commended Sunday's methods. Mindful of the maxim, "By their fruits you shall know them," we refrain from absolutely condemning any style of discourse or action which improves the conduct of men, but, like many of our readers, we are old-fashioned enough to wish that the same results might be achieved more decorously. One of the great charms of religious services is that they are not up to date in the ordinary meaning of the phrase. Somehow, talk of aircraft and baseball seems inappropriate in a church.

"SOMETHING NEW."

The great Jean Worth—great in the world of fashions—earnestly deplores woman's craze for "something new." Prefacing his remarks with the statement that, commercially speaking, he ought not to say one little word against the plague, but that artistically he is bound to, he pathetically says that women care not a fig whether a fashion or a color is intrinsically beautiful or ugly, if only it is new.

All the pretty colors are old, he declares, old as the hills themselves, but to meet the insatiable greed for newness, new shades—sometimes amazingly ugly ones—must be invented to please them; and modes must be changed with the changing weeks, days, even hours for some extremists with an abundance of wealth at command. And he assures the clamoring mesdames that "it is a disease, this mania for change."

If they would but turn back to the sweet reasonableness in dress that inspired their grandmothers and great-grandmothers it would be vastly better for themselves and for the beauty of the world. But no; simplicity is a forgotten word, and they must have as many gowns in their wardrobe as their husbands' finances will permit, all fantastically elaborate and a meaningless mixture of materials. It positively makes the great artist shudder, and he marvels that women fuss so greatly about their clothes and follow the fast-changing styles so meekly and implicitly that their own individuality is sunk out of sight, buried in the tuneless fashions they affect.

With tears in his eyes, or, at least, in his words, he begs women to "be not fashion's slaves," and assures them that if they will only take that lesson to heart and be laws unto themselves, recognizing their individual requirements, then they and their gowns will be in soft harmony and they will have the distinction of being supremely well dressed. For, with tact and good taste standing guard, "it need make no difference that the purse is limited."

And won't mesdames listen when the oracle speaks?

Evidently he has no fear of Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman and a few other aggressive women who are trying to stir up a mild dress-war upon "the ingenious gentlemen in Paris who tell us what to wear!" But, after all, they are not so far apart, for Mrs. Gilman is as emphatic as is the Paris dressmaker in demanding the blind following of fashion's latest decree. She, too, pleads for "the right of any woman to dress as she pleases,"—a right, by the way, that must be self-granted, more or less. As things run now, she declares, "if we dare to have an opinion of our own, young misses call us crazy." But she earnestly urges that it is time for women to develop a normal pride in humanity instead of an artificial pride in good looks and pretty clothes.

"And again, will mesdames listen?"

Verily, verily, verily, as one walks abroad these late spring days, and as one has walked abroad for many a season before, it is to wonder what ever becomes of the gowns, the hats, the everything of last season's making. For once a new fashion fully springs upon us, it seems as if the old fades away, literally overnight. Indeed, who but the hopelessly out of date dares fare forth without the proper fulness in the proper place and without the duly measured inches—yards no longer—at the feet? And who ventures out with a great big, flaring hat in these little perky days?

But the question is: What becomes of the old? For "the Colonel's lady" and Judy O'Grady are both modishly gowned. It really takes a pretty penny or so to change with the changing styles, but last season's fine raiment must be reposing on some sort of scrap-heap, for it is never seen on the streets today, at least only once or twice in an unstylish while.

And where does it go, and who pays the bills?

Yes, we women are pretty foolish when it comes to matters of dress, but the weakness has been partly thrust upon us. And beside, commercialism stands back of the changing styles. Dressmakers, milliners, manufacturers find the mania "financially splendid," as the renowned Paris authority puts it, but it is hard on women, who, for all of their meekness, secretly rebel at the preposterous speed with which a perfectly good gown is out-fashioned. It hasn't a chance to wear out; it is just forced "out of style," and that means dead to the world.

Of course, if women openly and unitedly rebelled and demanded that a style be permitted to run a sane and natural course, covering the normal life of a normal gown, we might have a chance to draw a comfortable breath and to recover from one dress-expenditure before it was time for the next.

But what about the mills where fabrics are made and what of the headquarters where styles are evolved? For millady's dress and millady's fine feathers are not unto herself alone—there's a fine little line reaching out to the great commercial world. But they do say that manufacturers nearly lose their heads sometimes through the rapidity with which styles are changed and the very uncertainty of their ventures. For women have been known to reject some of the atrocities put upon them, and then there's a fine loss for somebody.

VISIT KINGSTON at the Expense of Kingston's Progressive Merchants

THE CHAUTAUQUA IN KINGSTON

COMMENCES NEXT WEDNESDAY

Leading Merchants Will Co-operate by Offering FREE EXCURSIONS to the City for THREE DAYS

Pleasure and Profit for All! --- Be Sure to Come!

For the first time in history the privilege is afforded the public of this vicinity to enjoy the pleasures and advantages of the famous Chautauqua with its array of prominent speakers, lecturers and entertainers.

The Chautauqua program will be rendered twice every day—afternoon and evening, (with a change of program each day) in the large Armory of Company "M," on Broadway, and will include Victor's Famous Band, a High-class Opera Company, Tuskegee Institute Jubilee Singers, a noted violinist—together with a large array of noted speakers, lecturers and entertainers.

Tickets are on sale at popular prices and may be secured for the entire course, or for any performance. Chautauqua is worth going miles to visit and attend.

The merchants of the city have decided to co-operate in inviting you to Kingston, and for the first three days of Chautauqua are going to pay the Railroad or Boat Fares of those who come from a distance to visit the city.

In addition to this Fare Refund, every store co-operating has arranged to offer Special Bargains in all departments, throughout the entire Chautauqua Week.

There will be PLEASURE and PROFIT provided for all persons who take advantage of the combined attractions afforded during this gala week.

The opportunity is really too good to miss. Combine a joyous Spring outing with a profitable shopping trip, and bring your friends with you—the more the merrier.

Read carefully the details as plainly outlined below—then arrange to COME!

Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, MAY 13th 14th, 15th

Special Bargains Are to be Offered in the Stores Listed Below, and Purchasers from a Distance May Have Their Traveling Expenses to and from Kingston PAID to THEM in CASH. IT WILL PAY YOU TO SHOP IN KINGSTON on These Days---and All Days! COME!!!

BUY NOW in KINGSTON! IMPORTANT DIRECTIONS

Kingston merchants compete most favorably with all New York and Western Mail Order Houses—dollar against dollar—fair and just competition—and the Parcel Post does for the purchaser, in the small town, on or off the Railroad, what the deliveryman does for the purchaser in the city — DELIVERS PURCHASES TO YOUR DOOR!

REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD BUY FROM THE KINGSTON STORES

Our merchandise is of the best manufacture, equal or superior in both price and quality to any and all competitors.

You can have confidence in what we tell you—we are Ulster County people, catering for Ulster, Delaware, Greene and Dutchess County trade. We do business on the standards of honesty and truthfulness and you know many of us personally.

Kingston can deliver goods to your door 24 hours quicker than New York and 48 hours quicker than Chicago. YOU SAVE TIME.

The Big-City stores must have big profits to meet their big expenses—Buy of Kingston stores where expenses are low, profits less and prices less—YOU SAVE MONEY!

YOU ARE GUARANTEED ABSOLUTE SATISFACTION with every purchase, or your money will be cheerfully and quickly refunded. YOU SAVE WORRY!

Last, but not least, Kingston merchants appreciate the money you spend—are glad to know you and take a personal interest in your needs and see that you get the best service and the best values.

A Make a list of goods to be bought for yourself and your family and your home. You will be surprised to see how easily you can make out a list that will give you a free trip to Kingston and return.

B Buy your ticket at the railroad station. The co-operating merchants of Kingston will pay for your travel. The round trip can be made without costing you one penny.

C Come to Kingston as often and as early as you can during the days announced for this offer. Enter any of the stores listed on this circular and buy what you need. Special sales will be in progress at all the stores.

D Get a "refund check" showing the amount of your purchases at each and every store you visit. Keep your refund checks until all thru shopping as they are worth money to you. No refund checks will be allowed unless applied for at the time when goods are purchased.

E When you have finished your shopping take your "refund checks" to the CASHIER OF THE REFUND COMMITTEE, with offices at

Grand Union Tea Store and S. E. Eighmeyer's
318 Wall St., Uptown and 26 B'way, Downtown

You will be asked your name and address, with nearest railroad station, and your fare will then be REFUNDED IN CASH to an amount not exceeding five per cent of your total purchases—five cents toward your railroad fare for every dollar spent. This arrangement holds good only for the special days mentioned.

OPENING OF FORMAN'S NEW UP-TO-DATE STORE

On Saturday, May 16, we shall open our doors to the people of Kingston city and Ulster county, at 316 Wall street, with complete, comprehensive lines of Women's and Misses' Coats, Suits, Dresses, Waists, etc., fresh from reputable makers of New York and other large cities. You are invited to attend the opening.

We have come to Kingston to stay. Our ambition to please femininity with high-grade merchandise and superior values is fired by honesty and tempered with sincerity—honesty of purpose and consistent stability that we hope will rear for us a business structure in Kingston that shall be a bright, illuminating chapter in the merchandising annals of this city.

In sending forth this announcement, we do so in the belief that the people of this community will be benefited by our careful buying and square treatment.

We take this occasion to thank in advance those who will favor us with their valued patronage. The garments we have provided are of the kind that will go forth from this store capable of bearing our guarantee.

We want you to come and meet us—make it a visit of inspection, if you like—but come at all events.

The first and supreme test will be, not how much business we shall do, but how well we do it; not the winning of many dollars, but how many friends we shall make and hold—friends who will accord us their good word, loyalty and permanent patronage.

LIEUT. M'ENTEE IN VERA CRUZ

Interesting Letter from Regular Army Officer to His Mother in this City Tells of Voyage and Arrival.

Mrs. G. L. McEntee of 31 Green street has received a letter from her son, Girard L. McEntee, Jr., who is a first lieutenant in the Seventh Infantry, now stationed at Vera Cruz, Mexico. Lieutenant McEntee's letter was written on April 30, and the upper right hand corner of the envelope bears the words, in Lieutenant McEntee's handwriting: "Soldier's Mail; no postage stamps available." The envelope bears the United States postal stamp of Galveston, Texas, where it arrived on May 4. Evidently, at the time the letter was written Uncle Sam had not as yet established his postal system in Huerta's former seaport stronghold.

Lieutenant McEntee says in his letter: Well, here we are away down south in "Greaser Land." Let me tell you from the time of my last letter, although the papers have told you all the correct "dope." Thursday night we were preparing to retire, as we were about tired to death, when an orderly appeared and reported to me that we would go aboard the transport at daylight.

Well, we all got aboard four army transports and were conveyed down by three torpedo destroyers and the Louisiana. It was a beautiful trip, calm and fine, and I didn't have a quail of seasickness, which is remarkable for me. It was a very interesting trip too. We had the general on our boat, and five war correspondents of great note—Richard Harding Davis, Jack London, Mr. Emerson, Mr. Patterson, and one other. It sure was interesting to hear these men talk of their experiences. Well, we arrived Tuesday at daybreak. It was a great sight. Imagine twelve great battleships of our own, to say nothing of a mass of torpedo boats, destroyers, colliers, hospital ships, gun boats, and then the foreign battleships all in a very small harbor. To make it still more real a navy hydroplane was soaring above it all in a very businesslike way. General Maas's headquarters are up the line about 25 miles, and this fellow flies up there every now and then to see if every little thing is all right.

We didn't move the troops ashore until yesterday; in the meantime, we looked the town over. Saw at close range the effect of the gun fire on the naval college, which by the way was an intensely interesting sight. We went all through it into every room. The whole place was wrecked, the model room, chemical and physical laboratories, and all the paraphernalia was put "on the bum." Of course guards were placed on the building but we could go and come freely, and we pried into everything. The whole town showed signs of being shot up by the machine guns of the navy. On every street the buildings are nipped and scoured by bullets.

We occupy an old match factory on the outskirts of the town. The Fifth Brigade occupy the whole city now and we are simply employed in its police. Shots are fired every night yet, and every now and then some one is hurt, but on the whole everything is very peaceful. It is most interesting to talk with the refugees who come in, and get the "dope" from up country at first hand. They all with one accord say we should go right on in and take over the government, and teach these people how to govern themselves.

We are very comfortably situated in this old Spanish house. In the quarters of the owners of this old match factory. There are four companies, the band and headquarters of the regiment. The officers are just camping out, several in a room, but the place is clean and cool—as cool as can be found. May is the hottest month in the year, but the rainy season hasn't begun, and that will be somewhat of a relief.

We don't know what we are going to do. I know this much, that if we sit around here for a year as we did in Galveston, it sure will be fierce. We will either go to Mexico City or back to the states within a couple of months, everyone who is in a position to know, seems to think.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy is here among us and he is of that opinion. This place is so much like the Philippines that I feel right at home. Very little English is spoken here—very, very little—so it will be an opportunity to brush up on Spanish.

St. John's Church Notes.

The Kuyk Eout Club will meet at the parish house on Tuesday evening at 7:45 o'clock sharp. Mrs. McMillan, social worker for the Federation of Women's Clubs, will tell the girls of her work and a specially interesting meeting is anticipated.

The Camp Fire Girls of the church are particularly asked to meet at the parish house with Miss Cleary tomorrow, Tuesday afternoon, at half past four o'clock, as there is a matter of importance to be considered.

On Thursday afternoon at 2:30 the ladies and young women of the church will meet in the parish house to hear Miss Giles give her second talk on "China," this being the second of the mission study classes. Last week there was a large attendance and those present were both charmed and most pleasantly instructed by Miss Giles, who is a delightful, honest and impressive speaker, and an even larger attendance than that of last week is expected. Remember the hour this week and hereafter will be 2:30 p. m.

Wireless Operation.

Wireless messages are sent much more easily at night than in the daytime and in winter than in summer, and the range under favorable conditions at midnight during midwinter is said to be several hundred per cent better than at noon in midsummer.

SAUGERTIES.

Mme. Nordica Dead in Java.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Batavia, Java, May 11.—The body of Mme. Lillian Nordica, the singer, who died last night of pneumonia, after four months' illness, was embalmed today and will be shipped to New York at once for burial.

Mme. Nordica's illness dated from the wreck of the Dutch steamship Tasman on December 26th, upon which she was a passenger. In addition to pneumonia the patient suffered a nervous collapse. Mme. Nordica had booked passage to Naples shortly before she died. She was to meet her husband, George W. Young, a New York banker in Naples.

Shots are fired every night yet, and every now and then some one is hurt, but on the whole everything is very peaceful. It is most interesting to talk with the refugees who come in, and get the "dope" from up country at first hand. They all with one accord say we should go right on in and take over the government, and teach these people how to govern themselves.

We are very comfortably situated in this old Spanish house, in the quarters of the owners of this old match factory. There are four companies, the band and headquarters of the regiment. The officers are just camping out, several in a room, but the place is clean and cool—as cool as can be found. May is the hottest month in the year, but the rainy season begins now, and that will be somewhat of a relief.

We don't know what we are going to do. I know this much, that if we sit around here for a year as we did in Galveston, it sure will be fierce. We will either go to Mexico City or back to the states within a couple of months, everyone who is in a position to know, seems to think. Mr. O'Shaughnessy is here among us and he is of that opinion.

This place is not much like the Philippines that I feel right home. Very little English is spoken here—very, very little—so it will be an opportunity to brush up on Spanish.

St. John's Church Notes.

The Kyuk Eout Club will meet at the parish house on Tuesday evening at 7:45 o'clock sharp. Mrs. McMillan, social worker for the Federation of Women's Clubs, will tell the girls of her work and a specially interesting meeting is anticipated.

The Camp Fire Girls of the church are particularly asked to meet at the parish house with Miss Clearwater tomorrow, Tuesday afternoon, at half past four o'clock, as there is a matter of importance to be considered.

On Thursday afternoon at 2:30 the ladies and young women of the church will meet in the parish house to hear Miss Giles give her second talk on "China," this being the second of the mission study classes. Last week there was a large attendance and those present were both charmed and most pleasantly instructed by Miss Giles, who is a delightful, honest and impressive speaker, and an even larger attendance than that of last week is expected. Remember the hour this week and hereafter will be 2:30 p. m.

Wireless Operation.

Wireless messages are sent much more easily at night than in the daytime and in winter than in summer, and the range under favorable conditions at midnight during midwinter is said to be several hundred per cent better than at noon in midsummer.

This is the latest time saving idea in type-writing. And it finds its perfect development in the MODEL 10 VISIBLE

SmithPremier

The old hand adjustments of the carriage which consumed so much time and labor are, on the MODEL 10 SMITH PREMIER, reduced to an absolute minimum. Spacing for the writing point on each line, back spacing, tabulating; all are performed from the keyboard. The hands of the operator never touch the carriage except to insert the paper and space for a new line.

To watch a SMITH PREMIER operator at work is to get a convincing idea of the value of these time and labor saving features.

MISSION WORK IN THE NORTH WOODS

The Rev. Mr. Maddox Tells Rondout Presbyterians of His Work as "Sky Pilot" Among the Lumber Camps.

The work of the Presbyterian Church among the ten thousand lumberjacks in the Adirondacks was interestingly described to a large audience on Sunday evening in the Rondout Presbyterian Church, by the Rev. Aaron W. Maddox, who is in charge of the work. In his "parish of the pines" Mr. Maddox is called the "bishop of all out doors," but he is a bishop with but one curate, and that a man who is only able to devote but a part of his time to preaching, and who besides being a preacher is also a physician and surgeon. These two men preach on week nights and Sundays in over two hundred of the lumber camps in the mountains.

Mr. Maddox first took up the work among the lumberjacks three years ago, and his time is fully occupied in traveling from camp to camp. He makes his trips on foot and he said that he has seldom had to walk over fifteen miles to a camp and he does not remember of a camp being less than three miles away from where he started out in the morning. All of the trips are made on foot. When a camp is reached the boss of the camp is seen and asked if a religious service can be held that evening. Only in one case had he ever been refused and that was due to the fact that the camp was breaking up next day. There were just two places in the camp where a service could be held. The Rev. Frank Higgins, the sky pilot of the lumberjacks, had told Mr. Maddox that the best place to hold a service he had found was in the bunk house. Mr.

Maddox said that while Mr. Higgins might be right, personally he would rather hold it somewhere else. He said that there was no question but that in the bunk house you got hold of the men, for they were all there. Some bunk houses were double deckers, which meant one bunk built a short distance above the floor and another bunk above it. Some bunk houses, however, were three deckers which meant the first bunk being on the floor and the other two above it. The bunks ran all the way around the room. In the center of the room was the large wood stove, kept burning merrily to keep out the intense cold of the winter, and around the stove was hung the socks and wet clothes of the men to dry out. To add to that, every lumberjack was smoking and to say the least, the tobacco they used was pretty rank. Not a bit of fresh air was allowed in the bunk house and as fast as any came in it was driven out. He said that the odor of the bunk house was what he would call the "odor of the unwashed," and that once it had reached the nostrils it would never be forgotten. For that reason he preferred to hold the service when possible in the cooking shack.

The service was very simple and consisted of a short prayer and the singing of a few well known hymns and preaching a simple and concise sermon and offering a short prayer which always included the petition that the men would not forget the loved ones at home. Many of the men, he said, did forget the loved ones at home and this short and simple prayer sometimes awakened memories of the old home they had left behind them. The great sin among the lumberjacks, and that he knew all manner of sin, was that of intemperance, but it would surprise one to know that the men did not object to a temperance sermon, for they realized themselves that their winter earnings were squandered in the saloons. The majority of the lumberjacks were French Canadians who, he said, were probably the best woodsmen in the world, while some were Yankees from the farms, some Irish, a few Germans and lately a number of Poles were being brought in to work. A lumberjack was a wanderer and the wanderlust seemed to be born in them.

A lumber camp generally consisted of three crews, one on the job, one leaving the job and one coming to the job. He very seldom found the same men at the camp when he came back to it a little later. A lumberjack was likely to remain on the job for one day or one year, as the fancy suited him. It was no uncommon thing for a lumberjack to go to camp and work for half a day and then the wanderlust seizing him to go to the "ink slinger" and tell him to "mix him up a walk." This meant, in lumber camp parlance that he wanted his time slip made out as he was leaving for another job. The men needed the work of God and it was a fact that the religious services were attended and no effort was made to break up the meeting. In closing, he hoped that the church people would not forget the work when they made their contributions to missions.

Mr. Maddox's address was very interesting and brought out not only the need of the work but the fact it needed more missionaries on the field.

During the services Miss Los-Kamp of Brooklyn rendered several solos. Miss Los-Kamp has a very beautiful contralto voice and her singing was greatly enjoyed.

GOMPERS FREED FROM CONTEMPT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, May 11.—Samuel Gompers, president; John Mitchell, formerly second vice president, and Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, won a sweeping victory in the supreme court of the United States today when that court set aside the sentences imposed on the labor leaders in the contempt proceedings growing out of the Bucks Stove and Range Company case.

Gompers had been sentenced to 30 days in jail and Mitchell and Morrison had been fined $500 each.

The decision of the high court today means that the last chapter has been written in the famous labor case and Gompers and his colleagues will never suffer any criminal punishment for their alleged disobedience of the injunction issued by Judge Wright of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, aimed at the publication in the American Federationist, of the so-called "Unfair List."

Justice Holmes read the opinion of the court. He emphasized that the proceedings in the district court against the labor leaders were "a punishment solely for past acts, not for prevention of acts in the future."

The decision turned on the plea of the statute of limitations, which had been urged by the labor leaders as a bar to their prosecution by the committee of prosecutors appointed by Judge Wright. They claimed that they could not be prosecuted for acts committed three years prior to the time when they were last prosecuted in the district courts.

Justice Holmes was inclined to take a broad view of the statute of limitations and declared it did not make any difference whether the case against the labor leaders was a regular indictment or some other proceeding, the statute of limitations applied just the same. The prosecutors have claimed that the statute did not apply because the proceedings against the labor leaders was not an indictment and was not subject to the ordinary limitation of law.

Navigation Notes.

The tug John H. Cordis of the Cornell line is laid up at the Cornell machine shop dock for repairs and will not leave the creek for a week. The Washburn is also in the creek for repairs.

The tugs Foster and Williams went into commission on Saturday.

The tugs Terry and Pocahontas came up the river Saturday with one of the largest tows behind them in the history of the line. There were 100 loaded barges behind the two tugs. Both of the tugs came into the creek to coal up.

The tug Foss has been hauled out on Baisden's yard at Sleighsburch for repairs.

High Falls Defeats Rifton.

The High Falls team defeated the Rifton baseball club at High Falls on Saturday by the score of 16 to 0. Rifton used three pitchers to stem the onslaught, but in vain. The feature of the game was the battery work of Bert Meyers and O'Neil. High Falls would like to arrange games with teams which can give return dates. All communications should be sent to R. LeFever, High Falls.

St. James's M. E. Church Notes.

The St. James M. E. Sunday school board will meet this evening at 7:45 o'clock in the church parlors.

The Lion Hearted Knights will hold their annual meeting on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock for the election of officers.

There will be no prayer service on Thursday evening owing to Chaucer.

LUXURY IN ARGENTINA.

The Big Story They Tell of a Buenos Aires Hotel Charges.

The hotels of Buenos Aires are fairly good and very expensive. One of the cheapest rooms I saw in the Plaza hotel was $7 a day, European style. There are good Spanish hotels with rooms from $2 a day upward.

The Plaza is, perhaps, the most cosmopolitan of all the hostleries of the city. In its ballroom and its drawing room I was reminded of the Waldorf-Astoria. The meals are a little higher than in the big hotels of New York city. But there are numerous small restaurants where good refreshments may be had at reasonable prices.

As an example of the charges in the big hotels of Buenos Aires I may quote a story told me by an Argentine official. He said that some years ago a commission of European ambassadors was entertained by the Argentine government at the Bristol hotel on the Avenida de Mayo and that the bill for soap and perfume was $15,000 a week. Nobody seemed to complain and apparently everybody was satisfied.

Luxuries seem to be necessities to the Argentines, for I was told that the tariff on champagne is only 9 per cent, while that on a plow is 50 per cent—National Magazine.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, May 11.—The stock market had a mixed appearance at the opening today, most attention being centered in Union Pacific and Missouri Pacific, both making good gains. Missouri Pacific trading was influenced by reports in the financial district that Kuhn, Loeb & Company would yet supply the financial assistance so badly needed by the railroad. Missouri Pacific began at 17 1/4 for an advance of 1/4 but at the end of twenty minutes had increased its net gain to 1 1/2. Union Pacific opened up one point selling at 155 1/2. Soon, however, it shaded its best. The market opened an hour later than usual out of respect to the memory of the Vera Cruz dead, and trading at the beginning was light. Among the stocks which showed opening declines were: Canadian Pacific, 1/2; Chino Copper, 1/4; Consolidated Gas, 1 1/2; Ray Consolidated Copper, 1/4; Utah Copper, 1/4. At the end of thirty minutes the list had strengthened and a number of issues showed gains. New York Central moved with uncertainty opening 3/4 higher, after which it declined to 9 1/4 for the net loss of 1/2 from Saturday's final. Southern Pacific, American Can, Lehigh Valley and Reading were slightly higher. The Curb was steady. Americans in London were under pressure and irregular.

With the exception of Missouri Pacific the higher price range was maintained in the late trading. Amalgamated Copper sold at 72 1/2 for a net gain of 1 1/4 on the day and Lehigh Valley held around 140 against 138 1/4 at the opening. New Haven sold around 69 1/2; Missouri Pacific, after selling at 18 1/2 at noon, sold down to 17 1/2.

The New York stock market closed steady; governments unchanged; other bonds steady.

A Betrothal

Story of a Dancing Mania

By F. A. MITCHEL

In medieval times on the coast of Denmark, overlooking the North sea, was a village the people of which made their living by fishing.

Martin Aarhus, who followed in the footsteps of his father in getting a living by his nets, wooed and won Maria Stahr, who was conceded to be the prettiest girl in the village. Maria had pale blue eyes and a wealth of very light hair. As to her complexion, it was like milk tinged with rose leaves.

Unfortunately for the lovers, Maria's father was opposed to the match. He was a covetous man and wished to save his daughter's dowry. She was so beautiful that he believed some man from a fair supply of this world's goods would be glad to marry her without the customary settlement on her. He found her with far more resolution than would be expected from beneath those mild eyes of hers. Martin, too, vowed that he would have the girl if he had to run away with her. The old man grew more and more angry, and at last, when quarreling with Martin on the subject, said, in a fit of passion: "Before you shall possess my daughter I will give her to the devil."

Considering that the words were spoken in anger, nothing was thought of them. In spite of the old man's opposition, the lovers clung to each other and at last summoned their friends to witness their betrothal.

"WE NEED SOME ONE," SAID MARTIN, "TO PUT SPIRIT INTO US."

Since the gathering could not take place at Maria's home on account of her father's opposition, the guests were invited to meet at the house of Martin's parents.

While the festivities attending the betrothal were in progress old Stahr was at home grinding his teeth, though his wife was present at the betrothal. When early in the evening the guests, recognizing that the occasion was one of sorrow rather than enjoyment, were thinking of returning to their homes there came a rap at the door, and on its being opened a tall, thin man in red doublet and hose, black breeches and a black velvet cap on his head, ornamented with a single red feather, stood in the opening.

"Good people," he said, "I am a traveler from the south on my way to Copenhagen. Not being used to your climate, I am benumbed with cold. I beg shelter of you and something to eat."

No one in those days would think of turning away a traveler who asked to be taken in, and the stranger was made welcome. Some of the viands that had been prepared for the betrothal, with a flagon of wine, were set before him, and he ate and drank heartily. After he had finished and wiped his lips with a napkin, giving his mustache a slight upturn, he seemed to be much refreshed.

"How can I repay you," he asked, "for your hospitality? I am aware that no one, except one entertained at an inn, would offer money. I see that you are gathered to make merry. May I not do something to enliven you?"

"We need some one," said Martin, "to put spirit into us. We are met to celebrate a betrothal. I am to marry this maiden," pointing to Maria, "but you would suppose from her lugubrious appearance that I was going to do her harm."

A shock passed through the assemblage at this harsh remark of Martin's concerning his betrothed, so unlike him, for throughout all old Stahr's opposition Martin had been singularly tender with his beloved. As for Maria, she cast an indignant glance at him and, advancing to the stranger, put her hand on his arm and, leading him from one to another of her guests, introduced him. Martin watched them with flashing eyes, and it was apparent that a turmoil had been stirred within him.

It was evident that there was something in the coming of this stranger

Flags at Half Mast.

Flags at the army, city hall, postoffice, library and on many private buildings are shown at half mast in honor of the dead marines whose bodies arrived from Vera Cruz and in whose honor funeral services were held at the Brooklyn navy yard this morning.

that made a great change in the spirit of the assemblage and especially in the pair whose betrothal had come together to celebrate. In a twinkling he seemed to have irritated Martin and insinuated himself into Maria's good graces. Presently it began to appear that he had enthralled her. The sad look she had worn before was now changed to merriment. She chatted briskly with her companion and laughed gleefully at everything he said. When walking with him and passing Martin she either did not deign to look at him or regarded him with hate.

Maria's mother saw all this, as did every one else, and was desirous of doing something to break it up. She accosted the stranger thus:

"Good sir, do you not play on any musical instrument or sing?"

"I will sing for you with pleasure. Have you a harp?"

The woman brought one of those rude cases on which catgut was stretched and from which have been developed our modern stringed instruments. He struck a chord, and in an instant silence fell on the assembly. There was something weird in it that no one present had ever heard before. Then he began to sing. Every person within sound of his voice was thrilled with a strange sensation. He began low and soft, as if singing a lullaby to a child, gradually rising till his song had all the wildness of a storm wind passing through the rigging of a ship. Then, after a succession of dramatic notes, his voice fell into a basso profundo, giving an impression that infernal fires were rumbling in the bowels of the earth.

Meanwhile Maria had kept her eyes fixed on him, spellbound. Martin, who was watching her, now and again half drew a short dirk he carried in his belt, as if about to plunge it in the stranger's heart. But every time he did so something in the song unnerved him, and he let the knife slide back into its scabbard.

When the song ceased Maria's mother made another attempt to change the conditions. She asked the stranger if he would not play for the company to dance. Immediately he struck a chord that shot a current of exhilaration through every one present. He struck another, and all began to sway. A third drew men and women together in couples. Then began the merriest music that had ever been heard in that quiet village.

First the younger persons present went spinning over the floor, then those who were older, till all were whirling. Children, youths, married persons and white haired old men and women were dancing merrily, while shouts of laughter accompanied the spirited music to which they moved. The longer they danced the wilder grew their antics. Most of them wore wooden shoes, and the clatter was deafening. Now and again when a dancer kicked high his shoe would fly off and go sailing across the room. But no one paid any attention to the missiles, though they were in danger of receiving serious injury.

Persons who had not been invited to the betrothal, hearing the noise, came to the windows, and looked in. So catching was the music and the dancing that before long couples were moving on the sidewalk in a wild whirl. As the dance went on these were joined by others till it seemed as if the whole town were bent on beating the pavements with their wooden shoes in crazy capers.

The man who made this mad music, seeing Maria dance past him without a partner, dropped his instrument and put an arm about her, and the two went whirling like the rest. The legend goes that the music went on without the musician, though some versions have it that by this time the people were so crazed that music was not needed to keep them in their mad dance. In vain old Aarhus and his wife endeavored to call a halt within, and the mayor of the town tried to stop the dancing without. It was all the mayor and old Aarhus and his wife could do to refrain from dancing themselves.

Finally there was a clap of thunder, and a sudden silence fell on all the village. Persons stood looking at one another, wondering why they had been dancing now that they had no desire to dance. In the house where the betrothal was celebrated all the candles went out. They were at once relighted, and everybody began to look for everybody else. Martin was there, pale and haggard. He had been dancing more wildly than any one else and showed the effect more than others. Then cries arose:

"Where's the stranger who bewitched us?"

"Where's Maria?"

A search revealed neither of them. A girl said when the clap of thunder came she had seen the stranger and Maria whirl up in the air and disappear above the homesteads. One gave one story; another gave another. Martin seemed paralyzed. He was thinking what old Stahr had said on one occasion, "Before you shall possess my daughter I will give her to the devil."

For a long while the legend was that Maria was never seen again on earth. Then after men's minds had been broadened it ran that when the clap came the stranger was about to spirit Maria away, but met the village priest, who was coming with a view to quieting the tumult, and the stranger, catching sight of the cross suspended to the father's rosary, slunk away and disappeared. This version adds that Maria was found at her father's house, and the old man, horrified that he had so nearly given his daughter to Satan, relented, gave his consent to the match, and Martin and Maria were married.

But when they went to the church for the ceremony Maria carried a cross with her, fearing the devil might be on the watch for her and spirit her away.

SOCIETY NOTES.

A dance will be given in Russell Hall, Saugerties, on Friday evening, June 5, for the benefit of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Kingston City Hospital. The tickets will be $1. A list of patronesses will be published later.

Master Frank Race, the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Race of West Chestnut street, was the gracious host at a delightful birthday party given at his home on Saturday afternoon. Pink and white blossoms formed the decorations of the home. Games were enjoyed by the little folks and delicious refreshments also. A Jack Horner pie caused no end of merriment, the girls' plums being pretty dolls and the boys' plums being nuts. Each guest further received as a favor a pretty pink and white basket full of nuts. The guests were Eleanor O'Connor, Janet Thompson, John Thompson, Frank Thompson, John Sweeney, Charles Ellis, Jr., John Shields, Anna Shields, George Gadd, Raymond Gadd and Philip McCullough.

Federation Women Attention.

All members of the Federation of Women's Clubs are requested to plan to set aside this coming Saturday afternoon for the general Federation meeting which will be held in the chapel of the First Reformed Dutch Church at two o'clock promptly. It is some time since the Federation has been privileged to listen to such a program as will be given next Saturday and every woman who possibly can should be at the meeting. The Monday Club will entertain the Federation and for this entertainment they have secured as speaker, the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, D. D., rector of the Church of the Ascension, New York city. The Rev. Dr. Grant is a man of many and unusual accomplishments having enjoyed a trip round the world accompanying the late Bishop Potter at that time. He has gained an enviable reputation as a man of literary gifts, and his interest in the broadest aspects of the social problems of today is well known. He is a fine speaker whether from the pulpit or the rostrum and will talk next Saturday on the subject of "Poetry." As though this were not quite enough to draw a large audience, Dr. Grant is further to be assisted by Mrs. John Haldane Flagler, soprano in his church, a woman high in the social life of New York and possessed of a charming voice. She will "lend to the rhyme of the poet, the music of her voice." It is requested that all reports, which will be annual reports, be made in writing and as concise as is possible without omitting any matter of importance. The executive committee meeting of the Federation will take place on Thursday morning of this week at ten o'clock at the home of the president, Mrs. M. J. Michael. It is especially important that this meeting of the executive committee be well attended in order that the year's business of the Federation may be cleared up before the open meeting on Saturday.

Big Symphony Audience at Catskill.

Several Kingstonians happened to be in Catskill the latter part of last week and they brought back to their home town the news that Catskill people were tremendously enthusiastic over the Kingston Symphony Orchestra concert to be given there tomorrow evening. It was said that the big Nelsa Theatre was practically sold out and that it was difficult to get a seat. It is to be hoped that our own people will be as appreciative as are our neighbors of this splendid organization. Unless one has attended rehearsal of the orchestra one can have but little idea of the amount of work done by the men and women of the orchestra and all for the love of it. At the last rehearsal the musicians began before three o'clock and played steadily until half-past five, with no longer interruption than that made necessary by the change of scores. The musicians put their very best into their interpretation of the masterpieces of music which they are to render at the two concerts. The music they produced was indeed an inspiration and promises better concerts than the orchestra have ever given. This fine rehearsal was but one of very many. Yet there is no need of patronizing the concerts because a certain amount of effort put forth deserves recognition. The concerts deserve to be attended because no better and more inspiring music can be heard short of the Boston, Philadelphia or other such world-famed orchestras. And there is no reason to doubt that the proper support of this orchestra now, in its infancy may insure for Kingston another of the famous orchestras of the day. It is especially gratifying that this concert is to be given in the fine, new St. Mary's school hall on Broadway, for the acoustics are good and everything about the auditorium is the newest, most approved and most comfortable. The orchestra are increasingly thankful to Father Hickey for his generosity in giving the use of this hall for this concert. There are still tickets to be had at O'Reilly's news stand on Broadway, where the diagram is to be found, and all seats in the hall will be good, especially as there is no gallery to cover seats which might be beneath it. The public rehearsal for the children of our public schools will take place in the afternoon at half-past three o'clock. As the admission to pupils and teachers is but ten cents, parents as well as teachers should see to it that the children attend this concert which will prove a musical education in itself. Remember, the public rehearsal and concert on Wednesday of this week at St. Mary's Hall on Broadway.

Andrews-VerNooy.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Ver Nooy on Market street, Ellenville, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, May 9, at high noon when their only daughter, Miss Mary Emily, became the bride of Francis David Andrews. As the notes of the wedding march as played by Miss Margaret Connolly were heard the little ribbon bearers, Master Guy Ver Nooy, nephew of bride and Russell Fuller, cousin of the groom dressed alike in white, made way for the coming of the young people attended by Miss Ethel Lord of Deposit, daughter of a former pastor of the M. E. Church, the Rev. Albert E. Lord, bridesmaid, and Raymond Potter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Potter of Park street, as best man were ushered into the parlors where awaited them the Rev. Hart S. Fuller, uncle of the groom, and with the use of the marriage service with the ring the young people were then joined in holy bonds of wedlock. The bride wore a beautiful dress of white satin entrain with long veil also wore a cap of real lace and carried a large bouquet of brides roses. The bridesmaid wore a gown of pale green satin with an over dress of beautiful lace also wore a cap of real lace and carried a large bouquet of very light tinted pink roses. The groom and best man wore the conventional black. After the ceremony several gentlemen present who were graduates of Wesleyan University gave the famous yell most heartily. This was followed by offering bride and groom very hearty congratulations, and the young people lead the way to the dining room and took their places at the bride's table, which was beautiful in its decorations. There were also places for Mr. and Mrs. Ver Nooy, parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Andrews, parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ver Nooy, a brother of the bride, the Rev. Hart S. Fuller and wife, and the Rev. W. H. Moser and wife. The guests to the number of sixty relatives and friends occupied small tables in the parlors. A very sumptuous wedding dinner was served and all were waited upon by young friends of the bride. This was followed by a social intercourse as the bride changed her gown for her going-away-gown. The university friends sang several selections, which were enjoyed by all, and before 3 o'clock the newly Mr. and Mrs. Andrews amid a shower of confetti took their departure by automobile for Kingston, and from there to some point for a brief wedding trip and there to a newly furnished home, which awaits their arrival in New York city, where the groom holds a position in a bank. The bride has always resided in Ellenville. She is a graduate of the high school, also of Syracuse University, and the groom a well-known young man of Ellenville is also a graduate of the local high school and of Wesleyan University, and was for some time employed in the home bank before taking a special banking course in New York and at Poughkeepsie, before taking his present position. Both are members of the M. E. Church, and are very estimable young people with a host of friends, who extend hearty congratulations. The presents received by the young people were money in checks, gold and paper, rings, cut glass, line, etc., are both useful and beautiful. The decorations of the home throughout were beautiful. The mountain laurel in its green leaf, ferns of different description, and carnations in white and pink. Among the out of town guests were the Misses Eliza and Bell Andrews and Messrs. Sturges and Richard Andrews of Mountaintide, the Rev. Hart S. Fuller and wife, E. H. Fuller and wife, Lewis D. Fuller and family of Brookline, Miss Ruth Fuller, of Perth Amboy, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Townsend of Greenfield.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

The funeral of Charles Conrad was held this morning at his late residence on Ravine street, thence to St. Peter's church, where mass was celebrated by the Rev. George H. War-muth. Interment was in St. Peter's cemetery.

Thomas Finley, engineer on the tug P. C. Roman of the Cornell line, died on Sunday morning at his home after a short illness. He had been out of health for some time but came to Rondout Saturday night on his tug and was taken sick, dying suddenly. He is survived by his wife and two children, besides three brothers, John, Robert, Herbert and William of this city. Deceased was financial secretary and treasurer of the Marine Engineer's Beneficial Association of this city, his death making the fourth in that organization in the past year. For many years he was employed in the Cornell line, having been connected with the Roman, Decker and Pittson of that line.

LUXURY IN ARGENTINA.

The Big Story They Tell of a Buenos Aires Hotel Charges.

The hotels of Buenos Aires are fairly good and very expensive. One of the cheapest rooms I saw in the Plaza hotel was $7 a day, European style. There are good Spanish hotels with rooms from $2 a day upward.

The Plaza is, perhaps, the most cosmopolitan of all the hostleries of the city. In its ballroom and its drawing room I was reminded of the Waldorf-Astoria. The meals are a little higher than in the big hotels of New York city. But there are numerous small restaurants where good refreshments may be had at reasonable prices.

As an example of the charges in the big hotels of Buenos Aires I may quote a story told me by an Argentine official. He said that some years ago a commission of European ambassadors was entertained by the Argentine government at the Bristol hotel on the Avenida de Mayo and that the bill for soap and perfume was $15,000 a week. Nobody seemed to complain and apparently everybody was satisfied.

Luxuries seem to be necessities to the Argentines, for I was told that the tariff on champagne is only 50 per cent while that on a plow is 50 per cent—National Magazine.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, May 11.—The stock market had a mixed appearance at the opening today, most attention being centered in Union Pacific and Missouri Pacific, both making good gains. Missouri Pacific trading was influenced by reports in the financial district that Kuhn, Loeb & Company would yet supply the financial assistance so badly needed by the railroad. Missouri Pacific began at 17 1/2, for an advance of 1/4, but at the end of twenty minutes had increased its net gain to 1 1/4. Union Pacific opened up one point selling at 155 1/2. Soon, however, it shaded its best. The market opened an hour later than usual out of respect to the memory of the Vera Cruz dead, and trading at the beginning was light. Among the stocks which showed opening declines were: Canadian Pacific, 1/2; Chino Copper, 1/4; Consolidated Gas, 1/4; Ray Consolidated Copper, 1/4; Utah Copper, 1/4. At the end of thirty minutes the list had strengthened and a number of issues showed gains. New York Central moved with uncertainty opening 1/2 higher, after which it declined to 91 1/4 for the net loss of 1/2 from Saturday's final. Southern Pacific, American Can, Lehigh Valley and Reading were slightly higher. The Curb was steady. Americans in London were under pressure and irregular.

With the exception of Missouri Pacific the higher price range was maintained in the late trading. Amalgamated Copper sold at 72 1/2 for a net gain of 1/4 on the day and Lehigh Valley held around 140 against 138 1/4 at the opening. New Haven sold around 69 1/2; Missouri Pacific, after selling at 18 1/2 at noon, sold down to 17 1/2.

The New York stock market closed steady; governments unchanged; other bonds steady.

A Betrothal

Story of a Dancing Mania

By F. A. MITCHEL

In medieval times on the coast of Denmark, overlooking the North sea, was a village the people of which made their living by fishing.

Martin Aarhus, who followed in the footsteps of his father in getting a living by his nets, wooed and won Maria Stahr, who was conceded to be the prettiest girl in the village. Maria had pale blue eyes and a wealth of very light hair. As to her complexion, it was like milk tinged with rose leaves.

Unfortunately for the lovers, Maria's father was opposed to the match. He was a covetous man and wished to save his daughter's dowry. She was so beautiful that he believed some man having a fair supply of this world's goods would be glad to marry her without the customary settlement on her. He found her with far more resolution than would be expected from beneath those mild eyes of hers. Martin, too, vowed that he would have the girl if he had to run away with her. The old man grew more and more angry, and at last, when quarreling with Martin on the subject, said, in a fit of passion: "Before you shall possess my daughter I will give her to the devil."

Considering that the words were spoken in anger, nothing was thought of them. In spite of the old man's opposition, the lovers clung to each other and at last summoned their friends to witness their betrothal.

"WE NEED SOME ONE," SAID MARTIN, "TO PUT SPIRITS INTO US."

Since the gathering could not take place at Maria's home on account of her father's opposition, the guests were invited to meet at the house of Martin's parents.

While the festivities attending the betrothal were in progress old Stahr was at home grinding his teeth, though his wife was present at the betrothal. When early in the evening the guests, recognizing that the occasion was one of sorrow rather than enjoyment, were thinking of returning to their homes there came a rap at the door, and on its being opened a tall, thin man in red doublet and hose, black breeches and a black velvet cap on his head, ornamented with a single red feather, stood in the opening.

"Good people," he said, "I am a traveler from the south on my way to Copenhagen. Not being used to your climate, I am benumbed with cold. I beg shelter of you and something to eat."

No one in those days would think of turning away a traveler who asked to be taken in, and the stranger was made welcome. Some of the viands that had been prepared for the betrothal, with a flagon of wine, were set before him, and he ate and drank heartily. After he had finished and wiped his lips with a napkin, giving his mustache a slight upturn, he seemed to be much refreshed.

"How can I repay you," he asked, "for your hospitality? I am aware that no one, except one entertained at an inn, would offer money. I see that you are gathered to make merry. May I not do something to enliven you?"

"We need some one," said Martin, "to put spirit into us. We are met to celebrate a betrothal. I am to marry this maiden," pointing to Maria, "but you would suppose from her lugubrious appearance that I was going to do her harm."

A shock passed through the assemblage at this harsh remark of Martin's concerning his betrothed, so unlike him, for throughout all old Stahr's position Martin had been singularly tender with his beloved. As for Maria, she cast an indignant glance at him and, advancing to the stranger, put her hand on his arm, leading him from one to another of her guests, introduced him. Martin watched them with flashing eyes, and it was apparent that a turmoil had been stirred within him.

It was evident that there was something in the coming of this stranger that made a great change in the spirit of the assemblage and especially in the pair whose betrothal they had come together to celebrate. In a twinkling he seemed to have irritated Martin and insulted himself into Maria's good graces. Presently it began to appear that he had enthralled her. The sad look she had worn before was now changed to merriment. She chatted briskly with her companion and laughed gleefully at everything he said. When walking with him and passing Martin she either did not deign to look at him or regarded him with hate.

Maria's mother saw all this, as did every eye else, and was desirous of doing something to break it up. She accosted the stranger thus: "Good sir, do you not play on any musical instrument or sing?"

"I will sing for you with pleasure. Have you a harp?"

The woman brought one of those rude cases on which catgut was stretched and from which have been developed our modern stringed instruments. He struck a chord, and in an instant silence fell on the assembly. There was something weird in it that no one present had ever heard before. Then he began to sing. Every person within sound of his voice was thrilled with a strange sensation. He began low and soft, as if singing a lullaby to a child, gradually rising till his song had all the wildness of a storm wind passing through the rigging of a ship. Then, after a succession of demonic notes, his voice fell into a basso profundo, giving an impression that infernal fires were rumbling in the bowels of the earth.

Meanwhile Maria had kept her eyes fixed on him, spellbound. Martin, who was watching her, now and again half drew a short dirk he carried in his belt, as if about to plunge it in the stranger's heart. But every time he did so something in the song unnerved him, and he let the knife slide back into its scabbard.

When the song ceased Maria's mother made another attempt to change the conditions. She asked the stranger if he would not play for the company to dance. Immediately he struck a chord that shot a current of exhilaration through every one present. He struck another, and all began to sway. A third drew men and women together in couples. Then began the merriest music that had ever been heard in that quiet village.

First the younger persons present went spinning over the floor, then those who were older, till all were whirling. Children, youths, married persons and white haired old men and women were dancing merrily, while shouts of laughter accompanied the spirited music to which they moved. The longer they danced the wilder grew their antics. Most of them wore wooden shoes, and the clatter was deafening. Now and again when a dancer kicked high his shoe would fly off and go sailing across the room. But no one paid any attention to the missiles, though they were in danger of receiving serious injury.

Persons who had not been invited to the betrothal, hearing the noise, came to the windows, and looked in. So catching was the music and the dancing that before long couples were moving on the sidewalk in a wild whirl. As the dance went on these were joined by others till it seemed as if the whole town were bent on beating the pavements with their wooden shoes in crazy capers.

The man who made this mad music, seeing Maria dance past him without a partner, dropped his instrument and put an arm about her, and the two went whirling like the rest. The legend goes that the music went on without the musician, though some versions have it that by this time the people were so crazed that music was not needed to keep them in their mad dance. In vain old Aarhus and his wife endeavored to call a halt within, and the mayor of the town tried to stop the dancing without. It was all the mayor and old Aarhus and his wife could do to refrain from dancing themselves.

Finally there was a clap of thunder, and a sudden silence fell on all the village. Persons stood looking at one another, wondering why they had been dancing now that they had no desire to dance. In the house where the betrothal was celebrated all the candles went out. They were at once relighted, and everybody began to look for everybody else. Martin was there, pale and haggard. He had been dancing more wildly than any one else and showed the effect more than others. Then cries arose:

"Where's the stranger who bewitched us?"

A search revealed neither of them. A girl said when the clap of thunder came she had seen the stranger and Maria whirl up in the air and disappear above the house-tops. One gave one story; another gave another. He was thinking: "Before you shall possess my daughter I will give her to the devil!"

For a long while the legend was that Maria was never seen again on earth. Then after men's minds had been broadened it ran that when the clap came the stranger was about to spirit Maria away, but met the village priest, who was coming with a view to quieting the tumult, and the stranger, catching sight of the cross suspended to the father's rosary, slunk away and disappeared. This version adds that Maria was found at her father's house, and the old man, horrified that he had so nearly given his daughter to Satan, relented, gave his consent to the match, and Martin and Maria were married. But when they went to the church for the ceremony Maria carried a cross with her, fearing the devil might be on the watch for her and spirit her away.

SOCIETY NOTES.

A dance will be given in Russell Hall, Saugerties, on Friday evening, June 5, for the benefit of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Kingston City Hospital. The tickets will be $1. A list of patronesses will be published later.

Master Frank Race, the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Race of West Chestnut street, was the gracious host at a delightful birthday party given at his home on Saturday afternoon. Pink and white blossoms formed the decorations of the home. Games were enjoyed by the little folks and delicious refreshments also. A Jack Horner pie caused no end of merriment, the girls' plums being pretty dolls and the boys' pleasing toys. Each guest further received as a favor a pretty pink and white basket full of nuts. The guests were Eleanor O'Connor, Janet Thompson, John Thompson, Frank Thompson, John Sweeney, Charles Ellis, Jr., John Shields, the Association, New York City, Raymond Gadd and Philip McCullough.

Federation Women Attention. All members of the Federation of Women's Clubs are requested to plan to set aside this coming Saturday afternoon for the general Federation meeting which will be held in the chapel of the First Reformed Dutch Church at two o'clock promptly. It is some time since the Federation has been privileged to listen to such a program as will be given next Saturday and every woman who possibly can should be at the meeting. The Monday Club will entertain the Federation and for this entertainment they have secured as speaker, the Rev. Percy Sweeney, D. D., rector of the Church of the Ascension, New York City. The Rev. Dr. Grant is a man of many and unusual accomplishments having enjoyed a trip round the world accompanying the late Bishop Potter at that time. He has gained an enviable reputation as a man of literary gifts, and his interest in the broadest aspects of the social problems of today is well known. He is a fine speaker whether from the pulpit or the rostrum and will talk next Saturday on the subject of "Poetry." As though this were not quite enough to draw a large audience, Dr. Grant is further to be assisted by Mrs. John Haldane Plieger, soprano in his church, a woman high in the social life of New York and possessed of a charming voice. She will "lend to the rhyme of the poet, the music of her voice." It is requested that all reports, which will be annual reports, be made in writing and as concise as is possible without omitting any matter of importance. The executive committee meeting of the Federation will take place on Thursday morning of this week at ten o'clock at the home of the president, Mrs. M. J. Michael. It is especially important that this meeting of the executive committee be well attended in order that the year's business of the Federation may be cleared up before the open meeting on Saturday.

Big Symphony Audience at Catskill. Several Kingstonians happened to be in Catskill the latter part of last week and they brought back to their home town the news that Catskill people were tremendously enthusiastic over the Kingston Symphony Orchestra concert to be given there tomorrow evening. It was said that the big Nelsa Theatre was practically sold out and that it was difficult to get a seat. It is to be hoped that our own people will be as appreciative as are our neighbors of this splendid organization. Unless one has attended a rehearsal of the orchestra one can have but little idea of the amount of work done by the men and women of the orchestra and all for the love of it. At the last rehearsal the musicians began before three o'clock and played steadily until half past five, with no longer interruption that that may be necessary by the change of scores. The musicians put their very best into their interpretation of the masterpieces of music which they are to render at the two concerts. The music they produced was indeed an inspiration and promises better concerts than the orchestra have ever given. This fine rehearsal was but one of very many. Yet there is no need of patronizing the concerts because a certain amount of effort put forth deserves recognition. The concerts deserve to be attended because no better and no more inspiring music can be heard short of the Boston, Philadelphia or other such world-famed orchestras. And there is no reason to doubt that the proper support of this orchestra now, in its infancy may insure for Kingston another of the famous orchestras of the day. It is especially gratifying that this concert is to be given in the fine, new St. Mary's school hall on Broadway, for the acoustics are good and everything about the auditorium is the newest, most approved and most comfortable. The orchestra are increasingly thankful to Father Hickey for his generosity in giving the use of this hall for this concert. There are still tickets to be had at O'Reilly's news stand on Broadway, where the diagram is to be found, and all seats in the hall will be good, especially as there is no gallery to cover seats which might be beneath it. The public rehearsal for the children of our public schools will take place in the afternoon at half-past three o'clock. As the admission to pupils and teachers is but ten cents, parents as well as teachers should see to it that the children attend this concert which will prove a musical education in itself. Remember, the public rehearsal and concert on Wednesday of this week at St. Mary's Hall on Broadway.

Andrews-VerNooy.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Ver Nooy on Market street, Ellenville, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, May 9, at high noon when their only daughter, Miss Mary Emily, became the bride of Francis David Andrews. As the notes of the wedding march as played by Miss Margaret Connolly were heard the little ribbon bearers, Master Guy Ver Nooy, nephew of bride and Russell Fuller, cousin of the groom, dressed alike in white, made way for the coming of the young people attended by Miss Ethel Lord of Deposit, daughter of a former pastor of the M. E. Church, the Rev. Albert E. Lord, bridesmaid, and Raymond Potter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Potter of Park street, as best man were ushered into the parlors where awaited them the Rev. Hart S. Fuller, uncle of the groom, and with the use of the marriage service with the ring the young people were then joined in holy bonds of wedlock. The bride wore a beautiful dress of white satin entrain with long veil also wore a cap of real lace and carried a large bouquet of brides roses. The bridesmaid wore a gown of pale green satin with an over dress of beautiful lace also wore a cap of real lace and carried a large bouquet of very light tinted pink roses. The groom and best man wore the conventional black. After the ceremony several gentlemen present who were graduates of Wesleyan University gave the famous yell most heartily. This was followed by offering bride and groom very hearty congratulations, and the young people lead the way to the dining room and took their places at the bride's table, which was beautiful in its decorations. There were also places for Mr. and Mrs. Ver Nooy, parents of the bride, Mrs. and Mrs. George F. Andrews, parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ver Nooy, a brother of the bride, and the Rev. W. H. Moser and wife. The guests to the number of sixty relatives and friends occupied small tables in the parlors. A very sumptuous wedding dinner was served and all were waited upon by young friends of the bride. This was followed by a social intercourse as the bride changed her gown for her going-away-gown. The university friends sang several selections, which were enjoyed by all, and before 3 o'clock the newly Mr. and Mrs. Andrews amid a shower of confetti took their departure by automobile for Kingston, and from there to some point for a brief wedding trip and there to a newly furnished home, which awaits their arrival in New York city, where the groom holds a position in a bank. The bride has always resided in Ellenville. She is a graduate of the high school, also of Syracuse University, and the groom a well-known young man of Ellenville is also a graduate of the local high school and of Wesleyan University, and was for some time employed in the home bank before taking a special banking course in New York and his present position, before taking his present position. Both are members of the M. E. Church, and are very estimable young people with a host of friends, who extend hearty congratulations. The presents received by the young people were money in checks, gold and paper, rings, cut glass, line, etc., are both useful and beautiful. The decorations of the home throughout were beautiful. The mountain laurel in its green leaf, ferns of different description, and carnations in white and pink. Among the out of town guests were the Misses Eliza and Bell Andrews and Messrs. Sturges and Richard Andrews of Mountaintide, the Rev. Hart S. Fuller and wife, E. H. Fuller and wife, Lewis D. Fuller and family of Brooklyn, Miss Ruth Fuller, of Perth Amboy, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Townsend of Greenfield.

VENUE NOT TO BE CHANGED.

Judge Hasbrouck Refuses to Order Change to New York.

In the case of Bair vs. Henig, in which a motion was made at the last special term for an order to change the place of trial from Sullivan county to the county of New York, Judge Hasbrouck has handed down a decision denying the defendant's motion to change the place of trial from Sullivan county to New York. The defendant claimed the convenience of witnesses demanded that such change be made. The plaintiff, who sues to recover for money loaned, denied that the convenience of witnesses would be promoted by such change, and also raised objections to the sufficiency of the moving papers. The court allows $10 costs to plaintiff to abide the event of the suit. Herman S. Fried appeared as attorney for the defendant and the motion. Engel Brothers are the plaintiff's attorneys, but the motion was argued on their behalf by Milton O. Auchmoody.

Vets to Play Basketball.

The basketball team of Colonial Camp, No. 75, Spanish War Veterans, will play the team of Hudson B. Moore Camp, No. 78, of Newburgh at the Newburgh armory on Thursday evening, and a good game is expected.

Members of Colonial Camp, accompanied by their wives, will leave on the 5:45 o'clock West Shore train Thursday afternoon. The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Newburgh Camp will serve a banquet to the visitors after the game.

FIRST PHOTOGRAPH OF O'SHAUGHNESSY AND FAMILY MADE SINCE ARRIVAL IN U. S.

Nelson O'Shaughnessy was American Charge d'Affaires in Mexico City until the breach between this country and the Huerta government. He is now in Washington, having been summoned there by Secretary Bryan from Vera Cruz, where the O'Shaughnessys went after leaving Mexico.

KINGSTON MAN SAW FIGHT AT VERA CRUZ

The first personal news to be received in Kingston from the navy at Vera Cruz since the Mexican trouble started there is contained in a letter received today from L. M. Morehouse of Washington avenue from his son, Joseph Morehouse, who is gun pointer on the United States battleship North Dakota. The letter was written on May first.

Although the work of breaking out ammunition for landing was begun after the North Dakota was two days out at sea from New York, and knapsacks were packed, no landing was made from the North Dakota until after the fighting at Vera Cruz was over.

Orders for landing a battalion were received by the New Hampshire and the Florida at four o'clock one morning. The battalion was no sooner landed than fire was opened on the United States forces by about a thousand Mexicans who were stationed on the roofs of the Naval Academy buildings.

The Chester, which was lying close by, no sooner heard the firing than it opened fire with one of its five inch guns. Admiral Badger gave the order to Commander Moffet to cease firing, but the commander replied he'd be damned if he would have the Mexicans slaughter our bluejackets. He received the order three times from Admiral Badger but refused him.

As the result of the firing, 17 bluejackets were killed and 69 were wounded. (The bodies of the bluejackets who were killed arrived in New York on Sunday on the armored cruiser Montana.) The Mexican loss was about 300 killed and the number of wounded was unknown.

One hundred and ten Mexicans were found dead in one room in the Mexican barracks. The marines from the North Dakota landed later and took possession of the fort, which held 1,400 prisoners, of whom 1,200 had been held because they refused to join Huerta. The balance of the prisoners were criminals. The prisoners were kept in dark, damp, underground dungeons, and were packed in like sardines. They were starved and in every other way were made miserable.

OLIVEREA.

Olivera, May 11.—An excellent program was rendered by the pupils of the public school on the morning of Arbor Day.

Mrs. Burrett McKillip and daughters, Celestia and Lora, are visiting relatives at Pine Hill.

The pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church will hold services in the church on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

James Van of Branch was a visitor in town Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Van Valkenburgh and daughter, Madeline, made a trip to Kingston Thursday.

MORSE TO SUE R. R. FOR $10,500.

(Charles W. Morse.)

New York, May 11.—Charles W. Morse, financier and ex-convict, is contemplating a suit against the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R., for $10,500,000 alleging damages to the stockholders of the Metropolitan Steamship Company, which he says was wrecked by the New Haven. Under the law the Metropolitan stockholders are entitled to collect triple damages for any loss they can prove has been caused by the acts of the New Haven in removing two big passenger boats of the Metropolitan from competition with the New Haven in the traffic to Boston. The control of the Metropolitan passed to the New Haven interests in 1910.

His Worry.

"Clarence," said the American heiress hesitatingly, "I think that you should be told at once how my father made his money. Our business men in this country have methods which to one of your pure soul, whose motto is 'Noblesse oblige,' cannot but—"

"Cease, Mamie, cease," said the young lord reassuringly, "tell me no more. However he made his millions I can forgive, for your sake. But—er—has he still got them all right?"

Pessimistic Judge. Counsel in a case before Mr. Justice Darling at the Old Bailey, London, England, wanted a shorthand note of a statement which was being made.

"The judge," replied the shorthand writer, "he could see the shorthand writer at work. Counsel said as gracefully as if fairies of the air caught water drops and made them into artificial flowers to garland the bench; there are not many."

Thought for the Day.

"Every little flake of snow is a perfect crystal, and they fall together as gracefully as if fairies of the air caught water drops and made them into artificial flowers to garland the wings of the wind."—Lydia M. Child.

His Object.

"So you want to reduce your weight?" said the physical culture expert. "No," replied the caller, "I merely want to get into some sort of athletic activity that will permit me to wear clothes that are really light and cool in warm weather."

Impromptu Gush of Sympathy.

"Sometimes," reflected the elderly dame, "a man weeps at the wedding of a daughter, because he suddenly realizes what a mean husband he has been to his own wife and is overcome when he thinks of what may be of the girl."—Judge.

SILVERSTEIN CASE ARGUED TODAY

Argument was had before Judge Mayer in the United States district court in New York city today in the Deas corpus proceedings taken by Ador Silverstein, who was recently arrested on a body execution for failure to pay a judgment against him which arose in an automobile accident on the Rosendale road some time ago. The argument was to have taken place on Saturday morning but was adjourned until today, Silverstein being released in the custody of his counsel. Silverstein after his arrest gave a bond, but objection was made to the form of the bond by Rose & Brooks, attorneys for the judgment creditor, and he was again taken into custody by Sheriff Doyle. He was not surrendered by his surety, as erroneously stated in The Freeman on Saturday.

Umpires Must Report.

The umpires of the International League will be required to furnish detailed reports of all games this season. They will be supplied with a printed form to be filled out and mailed to the league office immediately after each game. Hereafter, when the playing time of a game is two hours or more the umpire must explain in his daily report the reasons for delay. He must also report all troubles and disputes with players, stating fully what they say and do. The back of the report sheet contains a list of rules and regulations on deportment for the arbiters, the president's interpretation of certain playing rules and other instructions for the guidance of the umpire.

A GLIMPSE OF MANCHURIA.

Its Wind Whipped Natives and Its Empty Brown Wastes.

Manchuria means an interminable brown plain—dry stubble, endless, empty furrows to be filled by and by with millet, kaoliang, waving, wonderful green plumage, high ash man and higher, in which not many years ago the Japanese hid whole armies.

Today it is the emptiest, most silent spot in Asia. It spreads out flat and tranquil in unthinkable forgetfulness. The sun beats down fiercely out of a deep, unbroken field of turquoise blue. The air is biting cold. A sudden breath of it is like a slap. A great tingling follows and a sense of extraordinary buoyancy. One feels impelled to laugh, to shout, to strike out, to do violent things. To sleep or sit with folded hands would drive one mad. There is that in the air which compels like the lash of a whip.

Over this brown waste, sheltering a million seedlings, trails an endless line of native life—a dull blue, curiously blunt outline—wheelbarrow men with sprawling legs and arms wide outstretched, cooing with bamboo poles slung across their shoulders, innumerable mules, cased like warriors in brass studded bridles and headpieces, donkeys picking little steps with litters on their backs, with wide toppling loads, with native women sitting astride far back upon their tiny haunches.

These Manchu people are a big, bold faced race, with brown skins whipped dull red by the northern winds. Shapeless bundles of them, hoods pulled over ears, stand at the stations and stamp their feet and beat their arms and watch the trains come in. A straggling line of native soldiers in bungling black uniforms, their heads wound tightly in black turbans, a great splash of blood red lettering across their breasts, present arms rigidly, with bayonets fixed, as the train pulls in and draws out.—From "The Color of the East," by Elizabeth Washburn.

FLOWER FIRE.

Some Plants Will Emit a Mysterious Radiance at Times.

The most wonderful—it might almost be said spiritual—attribute of flowers is neither their beauty of color or form nor their fragrance, but, strangely enough, a mysterious radiance that sometimes surrounds them, writes J. Carter Beard. It is strange that this flower fire is so little known and so seldom noticed.

The best time to watch for and to witness the emission of flower fire is just after sunset of a warm day, when the atmosphere is perfectly dry and clear. On the contrary, if the air is dense or the day has been rainy nothing of the kind can be seen. The light emitted from flowers is sometimes continuous, but oftener, perhaps, represents itself in flashes and flickerings like the sparks from a piece of paper that has been electrified. The duration of the light varies according to the state of the atmosphere and the sort of flowers that are under observation.

A daughter of Linnaeus is credited with having been the first, as long ago as 1762, to have observed the luminous emanations. While seated alone in her father's garden on a fine, warm summer night her attention was attracted to a cluster of the common nasturtiums, whose flowers shone with iridescent luster amid the surrounding gloom. Captivated by the charming novelty of the spectacle, she repeated her nocturnal visit to the flowers a number of times and never once failed to witness the gleam of the nasturtiums.

Numerous other flowers, many of which can be found in our gardens, are discovered to be self luminous after exposure to the strong, sustained light of the summer sun, for not only do groups of nasturtiums exhibit the phenomenon, but the corolla of the common sunflower, the dahlia, the tuberose, the yellow lily, and, indeed, a number of blossoms not named here.—Christian Endeavor World.

The Omnipresent Rose.

Every continent on the globe, with the exception of Australia, produces wild roses. There can be little doubt that the rose is one of the oldest flowers in the world, perhaps grown from the wind blown seeds in paradise. In Egypt it is depicted on numbers of early bas-reliefs, dating from 2600 to 3500 B. C. Rosewater, or the essence of roses, is mentioned by Homer in the "Iliad," and the flower is spoken of in the Proverbs of Solomon.

Ironing and Mending.

For the mother who does her own ironing and mending: Prepare a small bag containing necessary things for mending and sewing on of buttons and fasten it to ironing board. She will be able to sew on buttons and draw up little rips that will make her pile of mending smaller. If she could train herself to sit on a high stool as much as possible while working she will not be so tired at the end of a day's work. Exchange.

Our Work.

We must do our human work in a conscientious and immaculate manner, independently from whether we hope to become angels some time in the future or believe that we used to be molusks some time in the past.—John Ruskin.

Sure It Is.

A little West One Hundred and Forty-ninth street tailoring shop has the following hand written placard in its window:

We press your pants for 5 cts.
It's a sin!
—New York World.

Truth Bluntly Expressed.

A boy gets scolded for mussing his hair and tearing his clothes. But when he gets older and tries to look like a tailor's ad. he isn't nearly as much of a comfort to his parents.—Exchange.

SILVERSTEIN CASE ARGUED TODAY

Argument was had before Judge Mayer in the United States district court in New York city today in the habeas corpus proceedings taken by Ador Silverstein, who was recently arrested on a body execution for failure to pay a judgment against him which arose in an automobile accident on the Rosendale road some time ago. The argument was to have taken place on Saturday morning but was adjourned until today, Silverstein being released in the custody of his counsel. Silverstein after his arrest gave a bond, but objection was made to the form of the bond by Rose & Brooks, attorneys for the judgment creditor, and he was again taken into custody by Sheriff Doyle. He was not surrendered by his surety, as erroneously stated in The Freeman on Saturday.

MENKE'S DAILY
SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, May 11.—The Federal League seems to be pretty well
cluttered up with sluggers of the Jackson, Cobb, Speaker and Lajole
type, if the available dope on the batting averages is correct.

Just at the present time about a dozen Feds are clubbing over or around .400—a terrific clip—while
nearly 30 are swatting over .300,
with a number of others within hail-
ing distance of that mark.

Some folks may think that this
clubbing is due to weak pitching,
but that hazard seems to be accounted for by the fact that Joe T. who batted .317 last year at Cincinnati, is hitting 'em for only a trifle over
.200 in the new organization. Otto Knabe, a .263 batter last year is under .200 while "Mickey" Doolan is something like 100 points below his
clubbing average for last year.

If the Fed pitchers were something of a pie counter proposition,
it seems that this trio would be among those present at the moments
when the pie is being distributed.

Every so often some persons,
quite prejudiced toward the new organization, rush into print with
a frantic query about: "Who've
them Feds got for pitchers, anyway.
I'd like to know. Nuthin' but a buncha dubs, that's all."

Oh, very well; they can have it
their way. But don't you think that any league that possesses such pitchers as "Doc" Scott, Fred Falken-burg, Earl Moore, Mordred Brown,
Nick Cullon, George Packard, Cy
Barger, Howard Camnitz, Claude
Hendrix, George Mullin, Ad Bren-
nan, Bobby Groom, George Suggs,
Elmer Knetzer, Maxwell, Willett,
Ladette, Moseley, Gene Krapp, Doc
Crandall, Quinn and a few other
former stars of the American and National League is just a little other
than "weak?"

While on the subject of the Federal League we wish to introduce a
few more remarks from Frank Chance, boss of the Yankees, who
is very, very sure that the Feds will blow up before the year is out.

"This promises to be the worst
year from a financial viewpoint in
the history of baseball," declares the "Boss of the Yanks." Had the Feds broken into big league circles
in other years they might have had a chance for success. But they haven't now. The earphone this
year everywhere is woefully small,
and it means that the Feds must go
down under it.

"As far as I can see there's just
as much interest in baseball as in
other years, but there's also a lot of boredom in the way. The baseball public which went to the parks in other years now satiates its baseball appetite by watching the score boards. In this way they not only
can find the results of the ball
games, but also can read the latest
war bulletins."

"If the war hysteria dies down it's
likely that the fans will resume
their journey to the parks. But even if they do start to come in
the next few weeks it will not make up for the heavy losses already sustained by the managers through
poor attendance to date."

"The Feds must have felt the effects of this poor attendance, and I
don't doubt but that many of the
managers are disgusted and ready to throw up the sponge."

ASHOKAN.

Ashokan, May 11.—The Ladies'
Aid Society met at the home of Mrs.
C. Warren on Thursday. There was a good attendance. Refreshments were served, and a pleasant time was enjoyed by all.

Arrangements are being made to hold the M. E. Church fair on August 5.

cellent sermon in the M. E. Church

Orioles Win First Game.

The Orioles emerged from their winter quarters Sunday, after having
a most successful season of baseball
last year, and opened their 1914 season by defeating the Beverwyck
club, by a score of 9 to 8. The game was never in doubt until the ninth inning, when a combination of errors made by the Orioles netted the Beverwycks 3 runs, bringing their total up to 8. The following was the lineup of both teams:

Orioles:—Robbins, rf; Murray, cf;
Ryan, lf; McDonough, 3b; Culliton,

to his feeble health he thought it best to return to Kingston sooner than he intended.

Miss Hazel Baker is home from Spencers Business School at Kingston, where she has been spending the winter. Miss Baker plans on spending a month at home after which she will leave for a summer position at some nearby summer resort.

Miss Ruby Rider, who has spent the winter at Briarcliff, intends visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Rider, in the near future. Her stay, however, will be short in this vicinity
as she expects to spend the summer
at Kaaterskill in the Catskills.

Lionel Freer, who has removed to Granite, was in this place on Friday
after a remaining load of goods. Mr.
Freer will leave soon for a very promising position at a summer resort.

Miss Pearl Enderly is spending some time as the guest of her sister, Mrs. Fred Hendrickson.

Miss Eliza Bell spent Thursday out
of town.

Mrs. M. H. Markle and daughter, Miss Edna, were Kingston visitors on Thursday.

Arbor Day was appropriately
spent by our teacher, Miss Devine, and school children in making the school house and yard neat and tidy.

They certainly succeeded in beautifying the grounds which present a very nice appearance to passers by.

Herman Kortright of Kerhonkson was in this place on Friday.

Elijah Quick has been employed
the past week by Roswell Oster-houdt. Mr. Osterhoudt is having a heating plant installed in his hennery.

Mr. and Mrs. Abram Van Etten have over 600 little chicks.

Many attended the moving picture show at Accord the past week and report it having been fine.

Pigs seem to be very scarce in this vicinity.

School meeting, which was held on Tuesday evening, elected the following officers for the coming school year: Charles B. Osterhoudt was re-elected trustee, Ben Burger, collector, John Baker, treasurer, Elias J.
Osterhoudt, clerk. Mr. Osterhoudt makes a fine trustee and is fitted for the job. All are wishing to secure our teacher, Miss Devine, for next year, as she has given such good satisfaction the past year, being much

MENKE'S DAILY
SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, May 11.—The Federal League seems to be pretty well
cluttered up with sluggers of the Jackson, Cobb, Speaker and Lajole
type, if the available dope on the
batting averages is correct.

Just at the present time about a
dozen Feds are clubbing over or
around .400—a terrific clip—while
nearly 30 are swatting over .300,
with a number of others within hail-
ing distance of that mark.

Some folks may think that this
clubbing is due to weak pitching,
but that hazard seems accounted for by the fact that Joe T. who batted
.317 last year in Cincinnati, is
hitting 'em for only a trifle over
.200 in the new organization. Otto

Knabe, a .263 batter last year is under .200 while "Mickey" Doolan is
something like 100 points below his
clubbing average for last year.

If the Fed pitchers were some-
thing of a pie counter proposition,
it seems that this trio would be among those present at the moment
when the pie is being distributed.

Every so often some persons,
quite prejudiced toward the new
organization, rush into print with
a frantic query about: "Who've
them Feds got for pitchers, anyway,
I'd like to know. Nuthin' but a
buncha dubs, that's all."

Oh, very well; they can have it
their way. But don't you think that
any league that possesses such pitchers as Tom Seaver, Fred Falken-burg, Earl Howe, Mordecai Brown,
Nick Cullum, George Packard, Cy
Barger, Howard Camnitz, Claude
Hendrix, George Mullin, Ad Bren-
nan, Bobby Groom, George Suggs,
Elmer Kneetzer, Maxwell, Willett,
Lafitte, Moseley, Gene Krapp, Doc
Crandall, Quinn and a few other
former stars of the American and National League is just a little other
than "weak?"

While on the subject of the Federal League we wish to introduce a
few more remarks from Frank Chance, boss of the Yankees, who
is very, very sure that the Feds will blow us before the year is out.

"This promises to be the worst
year from a financial viewpoint, in
the history of baseball," declares the "Peerless Leader." Had the Feds broken into his league circles
in other years they might have had
a chance for success. But they haven't now. The earphone this
year everywhere is woefully small,
and it means that the Feds must go
down under it.

As for me, I can see there's just
as much interest in baseball as in
other years, but there's also a lot of interest in the war. The baseball
public which went to the parks in other years now settles its baseball appetites by watching the score
boards. In this way they not only
can find the results of the ball
war bulletins.

"If the war hysteria dies down it's
likely that the fans will resume
their journey to the parks. But even if they do start to come in
the next few weeks it will not make
up for the heavy losses already sustained by the managers through
poor attendance to date.

"The Feds must have felt the effects of this poor attendance, and I
don't doubt but that many of the
managers are disgusted and ready to
throw up the sponge."

ASHOKAN.

Ashokan, May 11.—The Ladies'
Aid Society met at the home of Mrs.
C. Warren on Thursday. There was
a good attendance. Refreshments
were served, and a pleasant time was
enjoyed by all.

Arrangements are being made to hold the M. E. Church fair on August 5.

Mrs. E. T. Byles preached an excellent sermon in the M. E. Church
on Sunday night.

Clayton Waters has moved his family to this village.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Warren of Campbell
Hall, but, formerly of this place.

Miss Hattie Youngs of this place,
is in the sanitarium in Kingston,
and in a very critical condition. We all hope for a speedy recovery.

Miss Dora Smith is seriously ill
at the home of her brother, Newton
Smith, in Millbrook, Dutchess county.

Orlones Win First Game.
The Orioles emerged from their
winter quarters Sunday, after having
a most successful season of baseball
last year, and opened their 1914 season by defeating the Beverwyck
team, by a score of 9 to 8. The game never in doubt until the ninth
inning, when a combination of errors made by the Orioles netted the Beverwycks 3 runs, bringing their total up to 8. The following was the
lineup of both teams:

Orlones.—Robbins, rf; Murray, cf;
Ryan, lf; McDonough, 3b; Culliton,
ss; Hallinan, 2b; Moxen, 1b; Harlow, p; Peyer, c.

Beverwyck nine.—Dougherty, rf;
Moxen, cf; Kenny, lf; Dittus, 3b;
Cullen, ss; Teetsel, 2b; Leonard, 1b; Wilson, p; Jansen, c.
